SCHOOLS AND THE COMMUNITY

MRS. MOUTRAY

PTA Movement Benefits Child

By JEANNE C. MOUTRAY
President, Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council

The parent-teacher movement was begun 56 years ago by people who believed that it was the right of every child to have an adequate preparation for adult life. They believed that, not only should he be trained to earn his living, but that he should also be able to face life with courage, assurance and an understanding of his fellow human beings. This preparation is even more necessary today, due to the complex nature of our way of life. For this reason, parents and teachers are co-operating in the training and guidance of children and youth.

Parent-teacher associations are formed to enable parents, teachers, and anyone interested in the welfare of the child, to study common problems. There are 31 such associations with a membership of approximately 4,000 in the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council. Each association serves the needs of its own school, and joins others in the council for guidance and the study of common problems.

Parents Share Responsibility

Every child in B.C. goes to school or has the opportunity for schooling. However, the school is not the sole educator of the child. Parent-Teacher is also concerned with the relation of the child to two other great educators, the home and the community.

The home has, perhaps, the greatest influence of any on the life of the child. It is the right of every child to have a home where love and peace abide. Such a home, with parents who understand him and are willing to be the real custodians of his welfare, sets his feet firmly on the path to becoming a well integrated personality.

How can young parents understand the needs of a child? Parent-Teacher attempts to meet this need with a parent-education program in the form of discussion groups, lectures by authorities on child welfare, and radio programs dealing with problems of child-training. The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation, in conjunction with the Extension Department of the University of British Columbia, has prepared many discussion group courses. A few of these are: Child Psychology for Parents; The Child from One to Six; Adolescence and Marriage and Family Relations.

Interest in Community Affairs

When the child reaches school age, he takes his first step out into the world. The wise parent goes right along with him and takes an interest in his school life. This may be done by joining a Parent-Teacher Association. Parent-Teacher members endeavour to understand the school and assist in interpreting it in all its aspects to the public. They keep informed on educational matters by means of lectures, forums, discussions, literature and radio programs. Parents and teachers co-operate to obtain the best for every child according to his physical, mental and social needs. The policies and programs of Parent-Teacher are educational, but they do not interfere with school administration or seek to direct school policies.

The accomplishments of Parent-Teacher have been numerous. To mention a very few, they have: Equipped school libraries; provided pianos, projectors, radios; sponsored art, music and drama classes; and promoted higher standards of home and school life.

Parent-Teacher also recognizes the influence of the community on the life of the child. For this reason, they have endeavored to raise the standards of community life by the promotion of adequate legislation for the care and protection of children and youth. They are alert to those influences which may be detrimental to the welfare of children, and support those which are beneficial.

11 CHILDREN IN 6 YEARS: FAMILY'S PROBLEM TOLD

What is it like for a family that has 11 children in six years? Paul and Rosa Tremblay of St. Joseph D'Alma in Quebec know full well for they had five sets of twins and one boy in this period. Their story is told in Weekend Picture Magazine which appears with Saturday's issue of the Times. An article on Douglas Fairbanks Jr.'s glittering social life in London, a color layout on Lady Alexander's kitchen, and a piece about "The Gunner," Canada's top gate-crasher, are other top features in the Weekend edition.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Moscow Names Malenkov As Successor to Stalin

Sorrowing Miles-Long Line Waits to Pass Coffin

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) Soviet citizens by the thousands filed past the bier of Joseph Stalin today in last tribute to the Soviet prime minister, felled by a stroke and heart failure.

Lines waiting to enter the beautiful Hall of Columns to view the body extended for miles into the suburbs.

Men, women and children shuffled slowly into the hall, in Moscow's House of Trade Unions on Red Square. They entered 16 abreast and then formed into column of twos to climb the stairs to the hall where the body lies. The slow procession will continue all night, and perhaps Saturday and the day after that and even the day after that.

A funeral service befitting one of the most powerful men in history was in preparation even as Stalin's coffin was borne into the hall to lie in state.

The Soviet "man of steel," who ruled over one-sixth of the earth's surface and dominated one-third of its peoples, died Thursday night in the Kremlin four days after being stricken. Death came at 9:50 p.m. and was announced to the Russian people eight hours later.

Stalin lay paralyzed and in deep coma at the end.

There was no hint as to who would succeed this man who led the Soviet Union's 200,000,000 people for 29 years and called the plays for Communists the world over. But a joint statement from the Communist party and the government

The death of Joseph Stalin was announced by Moscow radio at 4:07 a.m. today, Russian time, (5:07 p.m. Thursday, PST).

The Soviet dictator actually died, however, at 9:50 p.m., Moscow time (10:50 a.m. PST). Announcement of his death was held up more than six hours.

called for continuation of such policies as strengthening the armed forces, increased vigilance at home and tighter bonds with Communists abroad.

At this stage there is no prospect of any change in the policies Stalin pursued.

This afternoon a hearse left the Kremlin. While thousands assembled on Red Square to see it, the hearse moved slowly to the Hall of Columns bearing Stalin's coffin.

Immense heaps of flowers and wreaths surrounded it. Russians began filing past to gaze for the last time at the man who led them to victory over Nazi Germany. Thousands were in line when the doors opened.

The processions for those wishing to say "svyadaniya" goodbye will continue day and night until the funeral. No date has been announced for the final services nor has there been any word where Stalin is to be buried.

GLASS COLUMN

The Hall of Columns is only a few hundred yards from the great Mausoleum in Red Square where N. I. Lenin, Stalin's predecessor and the father of Russian communism, lies enshrined in a glass coffin.

The hall is in the House of Trade Unions on Red Square. Built in the empire style under the czars in 1874, it features 28 white corinthian-style columns. It can accommodate at least 2,000 people and often has been used for state functions, conferences and concerts.

Moscow was cold, windy and unpleasant today, but life went on as usual.

Moscow's embassies and legations lowered their flags to half-staff.

The death of the man who sparked the development of Russia from a near-feudal farmland to a great industrial power extended only by the United States was first announced by Moscow radio at 4:07 a.m. today local time (5:07 p.m. Thursday, PST) in a broadcast beamed to Soviet provincial newspapers.

Two hours later, Moscow radio's star announcer, Luri Levitan, told the saddened country that its chief had died. Levitan twice read both the official announcement and the final bulletin from the 10 Kremlin doctors who had been in constant attendance on Stalin since his stroke Sunday.

World Leaders Send Kremlin Condolences

BY UNITED PRESS

The death of Joseph Stalin brought the following comment from well-known men throughout the world:

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER—"The government of the United States tenders its official condolences to the government of the USSR on the death of Generalissimo Joseph Stalin, prime minister of the Soviet Union."

TRYGVE LIE, United Nations Secretary-General—"I have the honor to extend my personal condolences on the death of Generalissimo Joseph V. Stalin. On those occasions on which I had the honor of meeting Mr. Stalin, I have been deeply impressed by the qualities which made him one of the outstanding statesmen of our times."

LESTER B. PEARSON, President of the General Assembly, I express to you, to the government and peoples of the Soviet Union deep sympathy at the death of Premier Stalin. With his passing the U.N. has lost one of its founders and the Soviet peoples the man who was their indomitable leader in the course of the struggle against Nazi aggression."

SYNGMAN RHEE, South Korean President—"I express regret over the passing of the great leader of Russia. What we are fighting is not between human and human but between ideas and ideas. If the Communists prove they have no desire for aggression against their neighbor nations, we can even make Russia our good friend."

H. V. EVATT, leader of the opposition party in the Australian parliament—"The cold war strained relations with Russia inevitably obscured the fact that Stalin stood before the world as the embodiment of Russia's indomitable spirit to win in the struggle against Hitlerism."

Canadians Hoping for Peace

OTTAWA (BUP)—Canada's political leaders expressed fervent hope today that the death of Stalin may lead to a break-up of the Communist empire and eventually peaceful settlement of the world's ills.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent delayed issuing a statement until word of the Russian leader's death came through diplomatic channels officially. Canada will send official condolences in reply.

Progressive Conservative opposition leader George Drew said: "Stalin's death is an occasion neither for sorrow nor rejoicing. It is a time for hope. His evil influence has been felt over a wider area than has been brought under the domination of any single human being since the days of Genghis Khan 700 years ago. Within two generations of the death of the Great Khan his mighty empire fell apart. His terrible power was nothing more than a memory."

Opposition foreign affairs critic Gordon Graydon (PC, Peel) said: "We in peace-seeking Canada can only hope and pray that new leadership behind the Iron Curtain will repudiate the present imperialist policy of world domination and make it possible yet for all peoples of the world enjoy the sunshine of lasting peace."

CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said: "Perhaps few men have lived who have exercised a greater influence on the destinies of mankind than Joseph Stalin. 'Ultimately historians will appraise him. Let us hope that with his death opportunities will arise for the liberation of the Soviet regime. Then perhaps the world can find the way to the establishment of understanding and of peace.'"

Social Credit leader Solon Low said: "Every evil thing is said to contain the seeds of its own destruction. Stalin's death may provide the occasion for some of them to start to grow. Let us hope so."

PANIC IN THE STREETS

Mock Jet-Fight Touches Off Mass Hysteria in U.S.

SHELTON, Wash. (AP)—A mock jet-fight attack a few hours after the announcement of the death of Joseph Stalin Thursday panicked hundreds of residents here.

Two F-80 jet fighters from the United States Air Force base at McChord field near Seattle buzzed the town at speeds up to 600 miles an hour. The "raid" lasted 20 minutes. Hundreds of residents rushed into the streets to watch what some of them believed to be the beginning of the third world war.

Screams were heard on the streets, telephone lines to the sheriff's office and city hall were jammed.

Many people thought the death of Stalin had touched off an all-out attack on the United States.

A. H. Fagergren, ground observer corps co-ordinator, reported the "attack" was done with the permission of the city commissioners to drum up recruits for the corps.

Appointed Red Premier; Other Shifts Designated

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio announced tonight that Georgi Malenkov has been designated premier of Soviet Russia, succeeding Joseph Stalin.

L. Beria, V. M. Molotov, N. Bulganin and Lazar Kaganovich — Stalin's brother-in-law — appointed vice-premiers.

Moscow radio also announced that Marshal Klementi Voroshilov has been appointed chairman of the Soviet praesidium in place of Nikolai Shvernik.

Other appointments announced:

Foreign Affairs—Molotov.

United Nations permanent representative—Andrei Vishinsky.

War Minister—Bulganin.

Lavrenti Beria, 54, chief of the secret police for many years, also returns to his old job as head of the ministries of securities and internal affairs, which will be merged.

Expert Says No Man Will Fill Stalin's Shoes

(This special dispatch, exclusive to the Times, is by Edward Crankshaw, ranking authority on Russia today. Mr. Crankshaw was during the war with the British military mission in Moscow and is the author of several books on the Soviet, including the recent best-selling "Russia by Daylight.")

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

LONDON (By Cable)—The death of Stalin comes at a moment when the Soviet Union is showing greater signs of instability than at any time of peace since 1938.

Less than six months ago the summoning of the long-delayed Communist Party Congress and government reorganization in connection with it, suggested at last that the Kremlin had surmounted its postwar difficulties and was finding itself on an even keel. The reorganized Communist party gave the country a government machine far better suited to survive the catastrophe of Stalin's death than the ramshackle system of committees it replaced. Malenkov as supreme party boss under Stalin appeared to have strengthened his position immeasurably and to be heading straight for succession.

Then with a sudden outbreak of purges beginning this year the whole situation underwent a change and was fluid once again.

One underlying reason behind the purges was almost a certainly renewed struggle between Malenkov, party manager, and Beria, the head of the police. There is only one thing these two men would seriously quarrel about—the issue of personal power.

Stalin Only Popular Hero

What do Russians feel about Stalin and his successor? Although in the hearts of millions now in Russia Stalin's death will kindle a sudden flame of fierce joy, and millions more will mourn the man who drove them to the limit and taught them to realize their own strength, such is Russian nature that he came to be regarded even by some of those who had suffered most at his hands as the stern sentinel and protector standing between the ordinary man and the bullying of police and bureaucrats. Apart from him there are no popular heroes in the Soviet Union.

This extraordinary man would stand no light beside his own. Molotov he regarded as the faithful servant; Malenkov as the quintessential party boss; Beria as the man behind prisons and labor camps, deportation and midnight arrests.

Legend Not Made in a Day

It was not until long after he had achieved supreme power that even Stalin permitted himself to assume the outward trappings of power.

For example he was quite content to allow first Rykov then Molotov to act as prime minister until the very eye of war.

The Stalin legend was not made in a day and will not be inherited in a day. It was clear from the reorganization of the party last October and the transformation of small Politburo and Orgburo into the much larger and looser Presidium that Stalin was trying to set up a machine which would allow effective government by committee.

But in fact no dramatic changes are likely. The government machine is very strong; the entrenched bureaucracy reaches everywhere; the police have limitless power. The Russian people know this. They also know what came after the great predecessors of Stalin: Ivan the Terrible and Peter the Great. When a strong hand was loosened the country fell prey to every kind of weakness and reaction.

My own feeling is that although Stalin had borne so harshly and cruelly upon the lives of so many millions, a widespread feeling in Russia will be regret at the loss of an evil they know and fear of an evil they have not yet met. All most Russians will allow themselves is a hope that the transition from the leadership of one supreme and quasi-divine dictator to a dictatorship of lesser mortals will be managed without the dreadful calamities which marked Stalin's own rise to power.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

I have been watching a very young miss making candy and a crisis has arisen. The stuff won't harden. Three or four times she has tried to make it. She is checking the ingredients and studying the directions.

As far as she can see she has used the right materials and has mixed them properly. But somewhere in the process something has gone wrong. She's frustrated and unhappy. It doesn't even help to suggest she put the concoction in the refrigerator so she can heat it up and use it as hot sauce next time we have ice cream.

It's a disappointing experience for the very young miss, but it may be useful. She'll find, as she grows older, that living has lots of parallels for candy that won't harden. There'll be days when nothing seems to jell.

Yes, young lady, there'll be days like that. If you go into the writing business there'll be times when a perfectly blank piece of paper sneers back at you from a typewriter defying you to try to get an idea printed on it. There'll be occasions when you start to weave words together and they wind up with the cohesion of the frayed end of a manila rope.

Pinwheel to Oblivion

There'll be instances when thoughts that seemed to start as reasonably logical propositions pinwheel off into nothingness. You'll find yourself, once in a while, building an argument with apparently sound blocks of facts and theories only to find that the blocks haven't set and you have nothing for your pains but a spreading wet smudge.

You'll go over your material and your processes trying to understand what went wrong. The ingredients will look adequate enough and the technique will be the same you've used before successfully. But somehow the product won't stand up.

It won't matter, young lady, what you turn your hand to. There'll be times when things won't work out although all the parts of a solution seem to be in your possession and you think you know how to put them together.

The air force boys used to talk about gremlins. They worked their mischievous magic in indefinable ways to foul things up. They were handy things to blame. That's why they were invented.

There's a certain satisfaction in being able to put the finger on some cause for a result that's unfavorable. If you have a goat, you can free yourself partly of frustration. But you're only kidding yourself if you invent a stooge.

Lesson in Living

That's what the young lady was learning from the candy that wouldn't harden. There didn't seem to be any one reason why it shouldn't, but it didn't.

When she grows older she'll develop a defense against such calamities. When she appears to be working with ingredients that usually produce hard candy, she won't announce that she's making hard candy. She'll be mysterious. If you ask her what she's doing, she'll reply that you'll see when she's finished. That way, the candy that won't harden may be defined successfully as hot sauce for the ice cream.

The technique will improve her batting average. But it still won't explain to her why there are days when things don't jell. That just happens. You don't explain it.

Courtenay-Comox Areas Complain Over Power Cost

COURTENAY—Comox members of Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce have complained bitterly of the quality of service their district is receiving from the B.C. Power Commission.

S. R. Weston, power commission chairman, had promised lower rates, but since the conversion from 25 to 60-cycle power rates have risen, members said.

One resident, D. Aitken, said his domestic light bill had risen from $12 to $21 per month. After the "terrific price" paid for conversion, they said, actual rates are higher now than they were previously under the Courtenay city system.

500 ROASTERS VILLAGE TREAT

FLOCKTON, England (CP)—This Yorkshire village plans to roast 500 chickens at a Coronation celebration. The village bulletin said "just imagine 500 chickens on spits, slowly turning over a bright red fire... gallons of lovely gravy dripping into a pan below."

School Costs Formula Described As 'Stop-Gap' Insurance Policy

B.C.'s first lady minister, Hon. Tilly Rolston, outlined her formula for meeting education costs in the Legislature Thursday.

The minister of education called it an "insurance policy" which will enable local government to know in advance what help can be expected from the provincial government.

Here are the salient points: 1. Home owners will pay a nine mill rate of 100 per cent of land values and 75 per cent on improvements in all municipalities; 2. In unorganized territory the rate will be eight mills on the same basis of application; 3. The provincial government will pay the remainder of school costs.

"The old system of government participation in local school costs has outlived its usefulness," said Mrs. Rolston.

But the minister ran into considerable heckling from the opposition when she said the Rolston Formula will settle the matter of school finances for "all time."

"Oh, oh, oh, oh," shouted the opposition with derisive laughter.

"Well, it can be reviewed," said Mrs. Rolston.

"Read it again, read it again," coached Premier Bennett.

In doing so, Mrs. Rolston said the new formula will settle the school finance problem for "the time being."

"It's just a stop-gap then?" asked Robert Strachan (CFC, Cowichan-Newcastle).

"Everything is just a stop-gap. Didn't you know?" retorted the minister. "No doubt in future years changes will be necessary, as our province expands."

Mrs. Rolston's explanation of her formula, however, left a lot of questions unanswered and opposition members prepared to delve into it further before the estimates are considered.

Lieutenant-Governor's Responsibility Defined

Lieutenant-governors are not "mere rubber stamps," P. de N. Walker, former deputy provincial secretary, told a meeting of the Retired Civil Servants Association Thursday.

Speaking on the history of constitutional government under the British Crown, Mr. Walker said Lieutenant-Governors, like the reigning monarch, exercised an unseen influence in public affairs.

He said constitutionally the provincial secretary came next in order of precedence to the lieutenant-governor.

Here's her detailed explanation:

"... using 1952 as a basic year both as to school costs and assessments, every home owner of any property, will pay 9 mills on 100 per cent of land and 75 per cent improvements."

"The provincial government, through my department, will pay all the balance of operating costs. That is the great equalizing factor, which means that if costs stayed the same as 1952 then a person living in Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo or Penticton, or any other municipality, will pay exactly the same local rate for operating school costs—9 mills. In unorganized territory the same will apply, but the rate will be 8 mills."

"Now the government realizes that in an expanding province like ours, costs will continue to rise year by year. So in 1953 and future years the local school boards will receive the basic grants, plus a percentage of the increase in cash. To help the local school districts pay their share of the increased costs, they will have all the increased assessments from new buildings and benefits from the increased assessment they will receive, due to Bill 45, which will bring additional assessments covering machinery."

"Here, there has been a rationing of certain types of artillery ammunition. But whenever we needed to shoot it—in any quantity at all, either when we were on the limited offensive or when the enemy was attacking, we always had ample."

Clark today said there has been some rationing of artillery ammunition in Korea, but "there was always enough whenever we needed to shoot it—in any quantity."

The U.S. 8th army has enough ammunition to stop any "all-out" Red offensive, the UN Far East commander said.

Clark was asked to comment on Gen. James Van Fleet's statement to Congress that U.S. troops in Korea have been handicapped by a serious shortage of ammunition. Van Fleet commanded the 8th army for 22 months.

"As far as the ammunition is concerned," Clark said, "there is always a shortage, particularly in artillery ammunition, in the minds of the people who want to shoot it. In every war we always had ample."

NEVER HESITATED AT MASS MURDER

Stalin One of the Most Ruthless Leaders in History

From British United Press Wires

Josef Stalin was one of the most ruthless and cold-blooded leaders in recorded history.

Behind his bland dark eyes, the "man of steel" had a hard mechanical brain that never hesitated at mass murder in its driving ambition to dominate the world.

Millions of Russians—many of them Stalin's one-time friends—went to martyrs' graves because they threatened his plans. Tens of millions more were consigned to living death in concentration camps.

Stalin was responsible for two particular waves of horror which will mark this name in blood forever. The first was the great Russian famine he brought about in 1932-33. The second was the series of purges by which he became Russia's uncontested master in the late 1930's.

Stalin decided about 1928 to eliminate private farming in Russia and organize the country's 25,000,000 peasants into Communist collectives. One of his chief aims was to get rid of the Kulaks—some 2,000,000 well-to-do farmers who traditionally had owned most of the land.

The first part of the collectivization campaign went as planned. Masses of Kulaks were deported, slain or simply turned loose in the countryside to struggle for a living. As a class, they disappeared.

Stalin had expected that the great mass of poorer farmers would welcome his collectivization scheme, but, strangely, they balked. "Uneducated and accustomed to one way of life, they suddenly resisted the scholarly commissars and army officers who came to tell them how to work the fields.

Stalin was furious.

Secret police and army units poured across the countryside, seized grain stocks, ransacked barns, and surrounded rebellious villages with machine guns. Houses, barns, livestock and farm implements were turned over to the collectives.

When the stubborn peasantry continued to resist by burning their fields and destroying their animals, Stalin ordered their leaders shot. To starve the rest into submission, he moved grain and other foodstuffs into cities by the trainload.

How many men, women and children died of "starvation punishment" in the famine years of 1932-33 will never be known actually, but one western historian put the toll at "several millions."

He had calculated from the start liquidation of the remaining Russians who posed a threat to his supreme power.

In a series of public "trials" that lasted into 1936, political and military adversaries were eliminated lot by lot. The most dangerous of the opposition were sentenced to death before firing squads. Hundreds of thousands of others were exiled or imprisoned.

Stimulating Production

MR. ALISTAIR STEWART, CCF federal member for Winnipeg North Centre, looks fondly on Mr. Abbott's budget as "the kind... I would love to fight an election on."

By every present indication, Mr. Stewart may expect to realize that desire. But he may find the public attitude to the policies expressed in the same budget not exactly as he calculates them.

The Winnipeg critic has adopted his party's conventional line in declaring that big corporations, not the small ones, benefit and that the only thing the taxpayer got was a "slap in the face" from Mr. Abbott.

If an 11% tax reduction and removal of extra charges on cigarettes is a slap in the face to the taxpayer, the taxpayer will be prepared to stand a fair measure of such punishment.

But there is an underlying principle Mr. Stewart appears to ignore in his criticism and his talk of favoritism to the big corporations. Mr. Abbott was able to introduce the budget he did introduce only because he felt confident that the gross national product would continue to grow this year. Because production is expected to keep its upward trend, the minister of finance expects high revenue even with a lower rate of taxation.

And how can production be stimulated? In large part by the encourage-agement of industry which benefits directly by the corporation tax concessions.

As Mr. Abbott has said, there are benefits in the budget for all who are prepared "to work hard and vigorously for good wages, salaries and profits."

To a substantial degree, though not wholly, gross production will advance as industries and factories expand operations, keeping job opportunities high. Government efforts to promote such development extend to all Canadians, those who pick up pay cheques no less than those who share more directly in the profits from investment.

Mr. Abbott has shown appreciation of that fact in his budget. He is entitled to expect the principles he has followed to be understood by the people.

On a national network the other evening Mr. Abbott gave a more direct answer to CCF criticism. He was asked by Ottawa correspondents to reply to the points raised by members of that opposition group in Parliament. His response was simple and direct. The CCF, he said, believed in socialism. He believed in the private enterprise system.

Therein lies a fundamental difference of viewpoint which cannot be ignored in assessing the budget and CCF criticism of it.

More Reason for a Parks Act

RODERICK L. HAIG-BROWN, who has given Vancouver Island an authentic and highly articulate voice, has presented a compelling case for the integration of agencies which seek to safeguard the scenic and recreation facilities of this province, together with wildlife, for the enjoyment of citizens and the attraction of tourist dollars.

He has suggested to the B.C. Resources Conference the creation of a department which would embrace the provincial tourist bureau, the parks division and the game office. For proper control these subdivisions, he believes, should be co-ordinated under one administrative head.

His suggestion, of course, calls for the creation of a new department. Experience indicates that such a step would involve further expenditure of public money.

On the other hand, more effective operation of the different branches might justify higher expenses if they promoted higher revenues—a point implied by Mr. Haig-Brown under other circumstances in his case for protection of Buttle Lake as a future mass tourist attraction.

Mr. Haig-Brown's remarks to the resources conference invite study of the position in which the different agencies he discussed exist at present.

The parks and recreation division is an effective organization for parks planning and development. But it has only junior status under the B.C. Forest Service and the parks over-which it is given some measure of jurisdiction can be changed or eliminated as the author-naturalist-conservationist says "by the stroke of a pen."

The game office, under the Attorney-General's department is concerned largely with enforcing existing game laws that are applied to the public. Its facilities for improving the conditions of wildlife are strictly limited.

And the tourist bureau is divorced from these agencies by inclusion in the Department of Trade and Industry.

The points in Mr. Haig-Brown's argument are well taken. Still in question, however, is the matter of expense. At some future date that subject may be less important than it appears today.

Perhaps a start, without cost to the public, toward the goal of better parks and recreation administration and control could be made now by the introduction of an appropriate parks act. Under it the division now responsible for planning and development could be given a measure of authority it does not presently enjoy. An act, we submit, could be framed to eliminate conditions by which "any park may be extended or reduced or wiped out by the stroke of a pen—an order-in-council."

Such an act would not encompass the broader plan outlined to the resources conference. It would, however, furnish a start toward that scheme and it could be undertaken now by the legislature with negligible, if any, expense.

Sales Tax But No Sale

MAJOR-GENERAL GEORGE R. PEARCE, VC, is on sound ground when he protests to the federal government against imposition of the sales tax on goods manufactured by a municipality for its own use and not for sale.

The case has been raised on earlier occasions by the city council. Victoria does not understand why it should pay the tax on street signs it makes for its own use, or on mimeographed material it turns out without commercial profit. Similarly, some time ago, Esquimalt objected with reason to paying the tax on sewer pipe it built for use in its own system.

In each of these cases the municipalities concerned have done the work to ease the load on the taxpayer and to promote efficiency. Should such efforts be penalized? Should initiative be hampered and the property owner refused the financial benefits extended to him in the process?

There is, of course, obvious justification for applying the tax to a municipality when it goes into the business of selling its products. It should expect no special treatment if it enters a competitive commercial field. But in instances where no such gainful transaction takes place, imposition of the tax can only be regarded as an unjust levy on municipalities and, through them, on the property owner who must meet the bulk of the municipal tax bill.

Fire Burn and Cauldron Bubble

LITTLE KNOWN BY CANADIANS is that section of the criminal code which deals with witchcraft and its practitioners. Section 308 threatens with a $500 fine or six months imprisonment or both, all who indulge in sorcery, enchantment, conjuration or prophecy of the future for gain, or who claim powers enabling them to tell where the lost may be found.

The parliamentary committee on revision of the code recently passed over the section with smiles, conceding its right to remain on the statute books. But a reconsideration of its provisions might well be in order in these days of modern magic, when only the appellation "witchcraft" is lacking from the wonders daily performed.

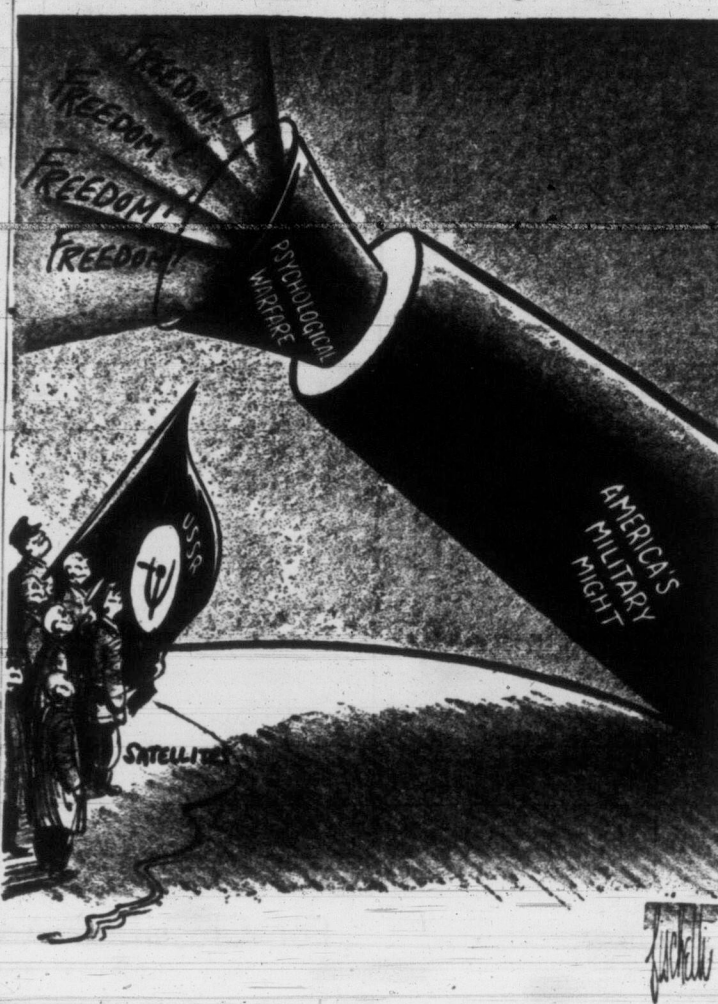

Will the movie maker or distributor be entirely free of the charge of enchantment? Can the police or political analyst plead not guilty to prediction of the future for a consideration? Should the Geiger counter operator locating a lost radioactive object or the radar crew avoid the charge of occult powers?

The witchcraft of the 20th century is somewhat different from that of the 18th and 19th but the results are largely the same. We can put on hexes and take them off, exercise powerful and secret influences on our fellows, utterly confound the human intellect with the intricacies of the electronic brain, and even cause our enemies and ourselves to disappear in a puff of smoke—mushroom shaped—at will.

There is nothing wrong with Section 308 itself. It just isn't being invoked.

Speak . . . and Carry a Big Stick

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

DO YOU know Clarence Elliott's delightful garden column in The Illustrated London News? (He writes equally charming things for The Countryman, though not so often.) Besides first-rate information and charm there is also much laughter, as is proper to gardens.

Some people in gardens behave as if they were in church or an art gallery. Though J. B. Priestley asks, sensibly, why we shouldn't have fun and laughter in art galleries.

Well, a few weeks ago Mr. Elliott was talking about horticultural boners and misnomers, of his own and other men's, and he got onto the subject of a nurseryman who insisted on giving every plant and shrub an English name, whether it has one or not, and whether he knew its right one or not.

Many of us know buddleia as summer lilac . . . not a very good name, and not mentioned by Mr. Elliott, but any name seems better than buddleia. The translating nurseryman had some buddleia globosa (that rather hideous shrub) for sale. "So he listed it in his catalogue as Globosa Buddleia."

If that isn't lovely, I don't know loveliness when it comes right up and bats me over the head. I have been going round saying "Globosa Buddleia" ever since I read that. I am saying it loudly right now, as I type these words.

Chesterton's father was a bit of a lad for his garden, and also a bit of a lad for his joke, and when guests asked him the names of things growing in his garden, he would airily invent any name that made him laugh to himself. "That? Oh, just a sprig of wild bigamy." In his Autobiography, Chesterton swears this particular joke would fool many a guest. Perhaps it did. I hope so.

A PRUDENT TRAVELLER

THERE was another good story in Mr. Elliott's page the other day, though not a gardening one. He says he was reminded of it by Philip Gosse's retelling it in "An Apple a Day," but Elliott himself was there when it happened. The late Edward Boulenger, who ran the aquarium of the London Zoo, used to travel about, collecting strange fishes. Elliott and others, at the club, asked him why he always sailed in foreign liners. He said he preferred the foreign food. Also, he said, in the event of shipwreck, "there would be no damn nonsense about women and children first."

A DANGEROUS TRADE

AFTER giving you three stories out of other men's print, three in a row, which you may easily have read for yourselves, I owe you one which you will not have seen printed anywhere. A friend of mine was talking to an Israeli friend who has an acid plant in Haifa. His chief fitter is a chap named Alkali. My friend, in telling me this astounding fact, said "it sounds to me as if Mr. Alkali stood a fair chance of getting neutralized." Annihilation!

TOO MANY COOKS

NOT only do too many cooks spoil the broth. They sometimes ensure that there is very little broth of any kind, or none, because nobody sees the need to work when somebody else could be doing it. I'll not be unkind enough to name some private firms and government offices where you can see this happening. Besides, you have seen it yourself.

This Israeli friend of my friend was telling him, besides the perilous position of Mr. Alkali, about how the Israeli Air Force had tried to get along with 200 staff officers, or a bit more. Brigadier Shamir (who is not an airman) was called in to reorganize the Air Force, as its head, and he reduced these 200-odd to a mere 11, and got much greater efficiency out of the 11.

That could happen in quite a few countries, and in quite a few branches of human activity. If you are lucky enough to have an outside brigadier to see what is wrong, I mean. Of course, it isn't always the bright outsider with his fresh view who is fit to say what's wrong. I'd go further, and say it seldom is. But in this case it was.

SUICIDE

FOR some time there has been a correspondence in Country Life about whether scorpions and cobras ever get so frustrated (often by trivial difficulties) that they commit suicide by stinging and biting themselves to death. Plenty of witnesses say they do. A little boy was fascinated by these tales. With memories of St. Valentine's Day still hot in him, he asked if Cupid ever shot himself by mistake, what would happen. I said you don't need any arrow to make you admire yourself, and from what I hear of Cupid he is mighty smug already. But at least if he used an arrow on himself, that would make one person happy instead of two people unhappy. You've got to look at that. That old trigger-happy assassin runs amok too often.

No, dear reader, I have not made the little boy cynical about Luv. All little boys are cynical about Luv until (roughly) they get to Junior High School. (It used to be Senior High School, mostly.) Or at the very least, cynical about other people's slush if not their own. And I had the goodness to refrain from pointing out that real tragedy in the Tristan and Isolde plot lies in the magic lovepotion, not in anything that came later.

From Our Files

MARCH 6, 1893—The Hebrew synagogue is being completely renovated. Carpenters are at work repairing the roof and cornices and will put up a new fence around the building.

MARCH 6, 1913—Work has been started on overhauling and outfitting the hydrographic steamer Lillooet, Capt. Musgrave, for her annual surveying cruise in B.C. waters.

MARCH 6, 1933—Victoria police soon will be again wearing helmets instead of the caps which now form part of their uniforms. The commissioners are in agreement on the change.

As Our Readers See It

CAN YOU IGNORE THIS?

This letter is written in the hope that it may be read by a man who, perhaps once or twice a month, would be willing to devote about two and a half hours on a Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of taking a totally blind and terribly crippled lad in a new wheel chair, from Mt. St. Mary Hospital to the new Blind Building, at 1609, Blanshard Street. The chair runs very easily and the trip takes 20 minutes each way.

His condition is such that he cannot be taken in a car, and it gives him great pleasure to attend the meetings of the Victoria White Cane Club which are held every Wednesday afternoon.

If anyone would care to volunteer, will you kindly phone, write or call, and the fullest details will be given.

ROLLER CANARIES

The Dominion Roller Canary Association wishes to correct certain misleading information, which appeared in the press, Tuesday, February 24, concerning the roller canary exhibited by Mr. P. W. Smoothy, at the DRCA international world-championship show, held in Vancouver, February 27, 1953.

World championship status at this show applied only to birds entered in the four-bird team classes, "A" and "C."

Wings made by Mr. Smoothy's bird were: Best Canadian old bird, best any age bird, class two.

This canary was bred and raised by Mr. Jack Stobart, of Victoria, B.C.

MARTIN HOFFMEISTER.
Western secretary, Dominion Roller Canary Association; president, Victoria Roller Canary Club.

STARVING RATS

I notice in the papers much discussion on the education of children. One item disgusted me, which told of children starving rats to see how thin they would get and feeding one well for a contrast. It seems waste of taxpayers' money to teach children something they already know, that is to eat good food.

It's the parents who should be taught to give children the right kind of food and not six meals a day, such as breakfast, lunch, afternoon lunch, supper and bedtime food, besides candy and ice cream. Children know they would get this with being starved, without watching rats suffer. Rats were created so that they could hunt for their food. They do not harm people.

If the welfare suggested such an experiment they would do better to teach children kindness to dumb animals. It has been taught as a regular lesson in England for the last century.

SAVE THE ABBEY.

Since everyone reads letters to the editor, and not everyone has time for columnists, allow me to jump out of my proper space for a moment.

It seems to me that not enough publicity has been given to Westminster Abbey's appeal for funds. Briefly, the need for a million pounds to keep the building from falling down is urgent and even desperate.

Being the property of neither church nor government but what is called a "royal peculiar" (I believe), its financial position is as shaky as its fabric. Not that church or government can easily find a million pounds anyhow.

The abbey is, however, in a very real sense, the property of every Christian member of the Commonwealth. Quite apart from its beauty, it is to all of us the most important building on British soil. The idea behind the appeal is for everyone to give one pound, if he or she possibly can. A money order for a pound costs just under three dollars, but any fraction of that sum, obviously, is a lot better than nothing. Donations should be sent to the Dean, Westminster Abbey, London S.W. 1.

I am proud never to have gone after my neighbor's conscience in any busy way before now, but I am proud to be doing so today.

DAVE BROCK.

Open Letter to the Minister of Labor

May we request of your valuable space to place before your readers the following open letter to the Minister of Labor.

The Hon. Lyle Wicks,
Minister of Labor,
Victoria, B.C.

Sir: As you are well aware, we, the employees of the provincial government are the only group of employees in B.C. who are denied the right to conciliation and arbitration. This right of the worker—to bargain with his employer over working conditions—is guaranteed as a civil right to all other workers except us.

For several months we have appealed to your government to grant us this right which we have been seeking from previous governments for over five years. Our efforts on behalf of some 10,000 provincial government employees have met with refusal.

The present cabinet's only action has been to suggest hoisting our request for a further six months "to study the principle." We rejected this on the ground that we are only requesting recognition of a civil right which already is a matter of principle.

On February 5 last we wired the hon. premier expressing our disappointment of his government's lack of recognition of this principle. We also stated that we were prepared to participate in a study of the application of the principle—but only if our civil right was recognized. To date (February 24) we have not even had the courtesy of a reply from the premier.

A Reply to the Critics

It is with regret that I have to reply in such a vein to Lt. Cmdr. Whyte's unwarranted and despicable attack upon the SPCA.

Lt. Cmdr. Whyte claims that he took a strong objection to the manner in which the annual meeting of the SPCA was conducted, the "unfair and arbitrary" method of election of officers and that he could not attend meetings with such an autocratic group as the present Executive Committee.

I might say that what should have been a peaceful and orderly meeting was again disrupted by the same noisy minority as last year, much to the disgust of the large majority of those present, who could not help but see where the blame lies.

This group, all members of the society, appears to consist of eight saboteurs and their misguided friends.

As to the election of officers, Lt. Cmdr. Whyte, a newcomer, should realize that the election was conducted entirely according to the by-laws of the Society, in the same manner as in the past.

The really significant fact about the election was that this subversive group was again very soundly defeated by the general membership. The entire committee of last year was returned to office by a substantial majority, the one vacancy being filled by Lt. Cmdr. Whyte.

Although Lt. Cmdr. Whyte had left the meeting before the count was taken, we informed him of this and made it quite clear to him that we would be only too glad to have him with us, especially as it might heal the breach.

This, he said, he would consider. His reply was a letter delivered by hand, not by him, but by one of his conferees, in which he refused to serve on the committee and stating, among other things, that if he did so, he would be letting down his friends. This statement, I might add, came from a man who openly states in the press that "personal animosities should never be allowed to interfere with the work for animals."

As this happened before a meeting of the executive committee was actually held, Lt. Cmdr. Whyte resigned from a committee, a meeting of which he never even attended and yet the impression is given in the press that he resigned from the committee because the "good of animals" was replaced by petty wrangling. After Lt. Cmdr. Whyte's refusal to serve with us, we regretted that we were unable at least to pacify this group and felt that the matter was settled.

But not Lt. Cmdr. Whyte. A month later he revises the whole issue in a most misleading manner in the public press and thereby causes incalculable harm not to us but to the cause we serve.

We, of the present executive committee, feel confident that we are doing our best for the Society and feel grateful for the confidence so overwhelmingly bestowed on us at the annual meeting of the Society, contrary to what the public has been led to believe by untrue statements and accusations uttered abroad by a faction who have shouted too long and too loud. A faction who have earmarked themselves as unfit in the eyes of the general membership ever to hold office in the Society again.

In due fairness to Lt. Cmdr. Whyte, I feel sure that his opinions are not entirely his own, but his actions are prompted by older hands who find him a convenient mouthpiece. However, I am shocked that such a wholly misleading attack upon a charitable organization, whose sole existence depends on the goodwill of the public, should emanate from him.

My committee and I are anxious to put into effect a progressive and expanding program for the welfare of animals, but as long as the public is led to believe such monstrous propaganda, which appears to be issued with calculated regularity, our cause is doomed from the start.

Through you, I appeal to the public, the life-blood of the SPCA, not to listen to such evil. Visit us at the only shelter in the whole of B.C. and see what we are doing against such odds.

Join the Society and rally behind a cause which must continue uninterrupted as long as man causes animals to suffer.

R. J. DUNSMUIR.

President, SPCA.

1,100 Troops From Canada Korea Bound

SEATTLE (CP)—A new major rotation turnover is under way for Canada's forces in Korea.

More than 1,100 soldiers are crossing the Pacific today, the biggest movement from this port for some months. They will relieve men who have had a year's service in Japan and Korea.

They sailed recently, military secrecy shrouding the actual departure day and the name of the United States Army troopship carrying them to the Far East.

The men are members of the 3rd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, Camp Petawawa, Ont.; No. 36 Transport, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, Camp Borden, Ont.; Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, Camp Borden, and the 59th Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers, Camp Petawawa. They will relieve units of the 25th Infantry Brigade in Korea.

As the big army transport sailed, the bands of the Royal Canadian Regiment's 3rd Battalion and the western command band of the PPCLI from Calgary played at the dockside.

For the Americans who saw the departure it showed that the Canadian Army makes music "most everywhere it goes."

Mentenko Hangs for Murder of Half-Brother

MONTREAL (CP).—Peter Mentenko, 28, was hanged at Montreal's Bordeaux jail early today for the murder of his 24-year-old half-brother, George Henchuk.

Mentenko walked calmly to the scaffold and shook hands with the jail governor, Dr. Zenon Lesage, and Sheriff Paul Hurteau before the noose was placed around his neck.

The trap was sprung at 12.35 a.m. EST and Mentenko was declared dead 15 minutes later. The body of Henchuk, bludgeoned to death by Mentenko, was found by children April 28, 1950, in a lead-lined sunken shaft in a Montreal East field.

Mentenko was convicted at his third trial on the murder charge.

Farmers' Income More Each Year: Gardiner

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner says the return to Canadian farmers is going up from year to year as production and prices increase.

Mr. Gardiner entered the budget debate Thursday. Commons to take issue with opposition statements that farmers face a dark future because of surpluses and loss of markets.

The only agricultural surpluses, he said, are 11,000,000 pounds of New Zealand beef and 76,000,000 pounds of canned pork. They would be disposed of eventually.

The government was not getting worried about markets.

When a market for one product disappeared, farmers had switched to other products.

Canada's agricultural production for the six years prior to the war compared with that for the six years following the war showed this picture:

Wheat production averaged 162,000,000 bushels in the post-war years; pork production up 360,000,000 pounds; beef production up 270,000,000 pounds; milk production up 1,600,000,000 pounds and egg production up 110,000,000 dozen. Prizes on the five products, he said, average at least 65 per cent higher in the six years after the war.

Before resumption of the debate, Labor Minister Gregg said the government is willing to intervene in a Vancouver grain handlers' strike which has tied up five elevators. The labor department, he said, is watching the situation and will be "happy" to move in "at the first sign that such mediation will bear fruit." About 250 employees are on strike.

Man of Steel Ranks With Peter the Great, Genghis Khan

By The Associated Press

For more than 20 years Joseph Stalin ruled Soviet Russia with a strong and ruthless hand. He won power after a bitter struggle with Leon Trotsky, his arch enemy, who fled to the West.

Many prominent Bolshevik figures were executed in the 1930's as the aftermath of a bizarre blood purge trials. Numerous others were imprisoned. Charges included conspiracy to overthrow the government, treason, murder and plots to kill Stalin and others high in the Soviet administration.

The relentless prosecutor was Andrei Y. Vishinsky, later to become foreign minister in Stalin's regime. Vishinsky demanded death for the "accursed vipers... foul dogs... disgusting villains."

By that time Stalin was firmly in the saddle.

Stalin led the 180,000,000 Russians through a series of so-called five-year plans designed to aid the nation's agricultural and industrial development. He led them into a friendship compact with Nazi Germany that freed Adolf Hitler for his war of conquest. And he led them into a long, bloody—and violent—struggle against Hitler after the latter had turned on him.

It was Soviet Russia's role as a war ally of the United States and Great Britain that lifted its prime minister to heights of power. His armies exploded the myth of German invincibility. Allied leaders heaped praises on him. He was one of the world's "Big Three," holding conferences with President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

But soon after victory Russia entered into what was called a cold war with the countries that had fought on its side against Germany. This was a conflict of ideologies.

RULED MILLIONS

Through intrigue and displays of power, Stalin extended his influence and authority beyond the borders of Russia until, the West believed, he dominated the governments of countries numbering about 800,000,000 people—the USSR, Communist China, East Germany, Poland, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Albania and Czechoslovakia.

Stalin was also the arbiter of the Communist movement throughout the world.

In the closing speech to the 19th Communist party congress in Moscow October 15, 1952 he pledged support to Communist parties all over the world in a

Stalin Chronology

1879—Born Joseph Vissarionovich Djugashvili, December 21 in Gori, Georgia, son of a cobbler.

1893—Enrolled in Greek Orthodox seminary to study for priesthood.

1899—Expelled from seminary for revolutionary activity.

1902—Arrested and exiled to Siberia.

1904—Escaped.

1905—Met Lenin.

1907—Met Trotsky. Organized holdup of the bank of Tiflis, in which millions of rubles were stolen for the party.

1910—Arrested again.

1911—Selected for a party committee by Lenin, his first major job.

1912—With Molotov, founded Pravda, the Communist Party paper.

1913—Exiled in Siberia.

1917—Helped engineer Bolshevik revolution and became a member of the Communist Party central committee.

1919—Became secretary-general of the committee.

1924—Lenin died and Stalin became contender for leadership.

1927—Won dominant place by purges and exiles of other contenders.

1937—All major opponents purged.

1941—Fought for "liberation and preservation of peace."

1945—One of only two public speeches Stalin had made since the end of the Second World War. The other was on February 9, 1946, recounting Russia's war achievements.

The congress marked the supreme pinnacle of Stalin's authority and demonstrated his complete control over the Communist movement and the Soviet state.

In contrast to the 20's when he bitterly fought for the place and the 30's when he liquidated possible rivals.

Under Stalin's direction, the congress revamped the governmental structure of the Communist regime. It replaced the all-powerful politburo of the Communist party with a new Presidium.

Stalin retained his place as head of the new 25-man group and also as head of the party secretariat. Besides these party jobs, Stalin continued as generalissimo of the armed forces, and chairman of the council of ministers—prime minister of the Soviet Union.

There were many evidences of Stalin's iron rule.

Early in his regime the well-off peasants—the kulaks—who opposed his collectivization drive were eliminated as a class. It was estimated that more than 1,000,000 kulaks died of hunger after their grain had been confiscated.

Gregory Zinoviev and Leon Kamenev, who had aided Stalin against Trotsky but had later gone over to Trotsky's side, were executed. Many others fell like wheat before the scythe during the purges of the 1930's or disappeared from sight.

Trotsky once used against Stalin a letter represented as having been written by Nikolai Lenin, revered by the Reds as a national hero, in which it was stated that Stalin was "too rough."

Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, a former U.S. ambassador to Moscow, described Stalin's secret police as much more efficient than were those in the Czarist regime—"or anywhere in the world."

In his book, "My Three Years in Moscow," (published in 1950 by Lippincott), General Smith reported that Harry Hopkins was asked, in one of his early interviews with Stalin, about delays in delivering certain lend-lease materials. Hopkins replied that strikes had held them up.

"Strikes?" Stalin asked. "Don't you have police?"

General Smith reported soon after his return home that the Russian people had what they wanted politically. He explained that they had no real understanding of democratic processes.

Regarding the clash between East and West, Smith quoted Stalin as once telling him: "We do not want war any more than the West does, but we are less interested in peace than the West and therein lies the strength of our position."

STUDIED TO BE PRIEST

Stalin's original name was Joseph Vissarionovich Djugashvili. He was born December 21, 1879, in the village of Gori, province of Tiflis, Georgia, the son of a shoemaker father and serf mother.

He was successively theological student, revolutionary agitator, journalist, military leader and political administrator. It was after he became a revolutionary that he took the name of Stalin, which means "steel."

It was the custom of revolutionaries to take nom de plumes for their writing and other activities as a protection from the police.

Stalin's father apprenticed him in boyhood to another cobbler, but his mother succeeded in having the arrangement canceled so her son could be educated for the Russian Orthodox priesthood.

In due season he was enrolled in a theological seminary, but his student days were few. At 15 he had joined an underground political group and had imbibed its Marxian doctrines. He expounded these to fellow students, was betrayed to seminary authorities and expelled.

AN ARDENT BOLSHEVIK

The czarist regime of the late 1890's had no haven for an ex-student of known radicalism. The secret police in Tiflis camped on his trail and he moved on to Baku and Batumi.

Stalin organized strikes, wrote pamphlets for publication on illegal printing presses and in various other ways carried the Bolshevik ideas to the masses.

It was under his direction that the first issue of the newspaper Pravda was prepared in 1912. "The Pravda of 1912," Stalin wrote on its 10th anniversary, "was the laying of the cornerstone of the victory of Bolshevism in 1917."

Stalin was jailed eight times and exiled to Siberia seven times between 1902 and 1913. He escaped from there six times. The last sentence was to the Arctic regions. There, in a closely guarded camp, he remained until the czar's overthrow emptied Siberia of its political exiles.

AS RUSSIA'S LEADER

While in Siberia in 1903, Stalin received a note from Lenin—his first contact with the man who was to become Russia's leader and whom he was to succeed.

One of Stalin's first moves when he assumed power after Lenin's death was to start building the economic structure of the country. The first of the five-year plans for industrialization was launched.

He built up a mighty military machine, too.

On November 30, 1939, the Soviet Union brought war to tiny Finland, which in 1918 had waged a successful fight for independence against Bolshevik Russia by making a war attack on the snow-covered frontier.

Russia repudiated the Soviet-Finnish non-aggression pact which still had several years to run and began an invasion. In the beginning of the conflict the Finns scored a series of spectacular victories, but the Red Army's crushing weight soon overcame the resistance. On March 12, 1940, the Finns gave up to end the costly, hopeless conflict known as the "winter war."

A little more than a year after the "winter war" ended, Finland went to war with Russia as an ally of Nazi Germany. That was when Germany invaded Russia in 1941.

FACT WITH NAZIS

While Britain and France were negotiating for an alliance with Russia in the uneasy summer of 1939 Russia astounded them and most of the rest of the world by signing a non-aggression pact with the Nazis.

That was the spark that touched off the powder keg. Germany's forces were released for waging the "lightning war" on Poland. Britain and France, disillusioned about appeasement, went to Poland's aid. The Second World War was on.

Documents captured by British and American troops during the war and released some time later disclosed that Russia had initiated the move for the friendship treaty with Germany.

In pursuance of the partnership agreement, the documents showed, Russia helped the Nazis defeat the British blockade for to wreck the United States European Recovery Program (the Marshall Plan) that was designed to help war-torn Europe back to its feet.

Differences between the East and the West persisted in the United Nations Security Council, in the occupation areas of Germany, in Korea and elsewhere. Heavy American aid to the Chinese Nationalists failed to prevent China from being overrun by Communism. In the UN Security Council there was a virtual deadlock in all major peace-keeping machinery. The atomic bomb was the major issue.

The United States' proposals for international control of the atomic weapon were not acceptable to Russia.

BOMB SECRET BROKEN

Stalin termed Churchill a warmonger and accused him of telling lies. He called the former British prime minister "the main instigator of a new war."

Russia finally broke the atomic secret. On September 23, 1949, President Harry S. Truman announced that an "atomic explosion" had occurred in Soviet Russia.

Stalin's private life behind the high Kremlin walls was wrapped in mystery.

According to the generally accepted version, his second wife was found dead—with a pistol standing over her and a pistol nearby—after a political quarrel with her husband. This allegedly happened November 10, 1932, and, during the spat, she is alleged to have thrown an inkwell at the Russian ruler.

There are reports, usually accepted in well-informed circles, that Stalin shortly afterwards married Rosa Kaganovich, sister of Laza M. Kaganovich who is the only Jew still holding high rank in the Soviet Union. Such a union, however, has never been publicly announced.

ON THE OUTDOOR FRONT

With ROY THORSEN

Five hundred fishermen will invade Saanich Inlet late this summer to seek big salmon that will win them a share of $3,000 in prizes.

Decision of a Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association directors' meeting Thursday night approved a list of prizes suggested by derby chairman Andy Anderson.

It was decided that top prize in the August 23 fishoff will be an 18-foot Ozarka cabin cruiser with a six and one-half horsepower in-board motor.

Second prize will be a 14-foot boat with an in-board motor.

A refrigerator will be third prize and an electric sewing machine fourth. There will be eight other prizes for the lucky ones who make the grade to the final fishoff. Add it all up and it means a prize list worth $3,000.

More Prizes and More Finalists

Last year only 450 were allowed to qualify for the final, but Anderson and company figured the number should be increased because of the value of this year's prizes. He received approval from the meeting, chaired by VSIAA prexy Wil Wilson.

By the way, there will also be weekly prizes in the ladder derby. Association members can gain the fishoff only by holding a rung in any of the 10 weekly contests. The derby starts June 3.

There were definite indications that this year's public Solatium derby sponsored by the Anglers and The Times will have the richest prize list ever offered to the public. However, contrary to other reports, no decision has been reached on the main prize.

The joint meeting of the VSIAA and the Chinook Club—composed of those few who have caught button-size salmon in the inlet over the last 23 years—was arranged to clear up a misunderstanding caused by rumors the Chinookers were planning to break away from the parent body. All was settled amicably, however, the rumors proving unfounded.

Blueback fishing still rates as "pretty fair" in Saanich Inlet. Bucktail flies are still tops, reports May Hall, Goldstream.

The weatherman double-crossed freshwater fly fishermen for the opening day of the trout fishing season last Sunday. There was frost Saturday night and a cold north wind Sunday. The result: A near "washout" for fly fishermen. But trollers did much better.

Trollers Outcatch Fly Purists

Veteran fly fishermen Joe Jewkes only landed three in Shawigan, and Jack King and Dr. Bobby Hunter also fared poorly. Roger Monteith heard from two young fellows who got 14 in Shawigan trolling a flatfish lure.

In Cowichan River's upper reaches Jack Harris and Joe Hancock reeled in 16 trout on sunken flies. Gordy Lamont, Verne Palliser, Al Trace and Vic Smith also did well.

Better results were scored after Sunday with an improvement in the weather.

Andy Davidson reeled in 11 trout Monday and Tuesday at Kemp Lake, Sooke, and George Gowdie also had some rewarding results the same days at Kemp.

Donald Drew, 16, 391 Grange Road, picked up six trout in Pike Lake with flatfish, fly and spinner and worm last weekend. Martin Hamersley, 1989 Crescent Road, aged 13, didn't get any fish last Sunday in Prior Lake (near Little Theis) but had an unscheduled swim. The raft he was fishing from broke apart and he had to swim for it to gain shore.

Duke Scott reports anglers are still bringing in salmon to his Oak Bay Boathouse.

Stan Williams reports that there is good blueback fishing off Crofton, near Duncan.

United, Royals Clash In Important Match

When Victoria United face New Westminster Royals at Athletic Park Saturday at 2:30 they will present almost the identical line-up they used to down Vancouver Firefighters, 7-3, last Saturday.

A win for United is essential if they are to retain any hope of coping league honors and with this in mind, manager George Eade has announced that the club (except for one change) which rapped in four second-half goals against the firemen will start this important test.

The exception finds Ced Robb moving to inside left. Robb has scored three goals in each of his last two games.

Bill McAllister will handle the goal duties, and Joe Robbins and Bill Hope the fullback unit. John Pickburn, Herman Henry and Denny McGee will be on the half line, while Wally Milligan will centre Tim Walker and Ray Wilkinson on the right side. Robb and Bernie Clarkson on the left.

Tom Druce will centre Royals' attacking unit of Gogie Stewart, Ivan Carr, Earl Crossan and John McKay. Les Hibbert, Joe Foster and Bill Hislop will play half while Al Sawyer and Buster Cairns will front goalie Ken Pears.

Bob Findler, Jack Spry, John Dunn, Lex Henderson and Paul Fabris will be spares for the Royals.

United reserves are Harry Carruthers, Terry Cowan, Einar Floaten and Ken Williams.

Eastern Stars Sweep Into Shuttle Semis

TORONTO (BUP)—Defending titleholder Don Smythe of Toronto paced an all-eastern tourney into the semi-finals of the Canadian men's singles badminton championships today after four Vancouver stars were swept to the sidelines.

Smythe, who was an odds-on favorite to cop his third straight championship, stepped into the semi-finals Thursday with a 15-7, 15-12 victory over Vancouver's John Bouck.

Three other west coast stars, including second-seeded Daryl Thompson, were the victims of upsets.

Thompson, who was generally regarded as the man who would face Smythe in the final Saturday, fell before Toronto's Bev Westcott, 15-7, 17-16. Another Toronto shuttle artist, Jack

Robertson 'Key Leaf' In Kins' Playoff Plan

If any one man can "make" a team in any sport, then Sandy Robertson is that man and the Vancouver Clover Leafs are that team.

Robertson is to Leafs what mustard is to a hot-dog—without him they are flat. This was ever so aptly proven in the recent Vancouver senior city play-offs.

Without Robertson, who missed three games because of a leg injury, Leafs were trailing the best-of-seven series three games to one. Robertson returned for the fifth game and Leafs proceeded to win the Vancouver title with three straight victories.

Although Robertson saw only limited action after his return, his presence in the line-up was credited for bringing coach Ron Webber's Leafs back from the brink of elimination.

Robertson received the leg injury in Victoria when Leafs captured the Kinsmen Invitational Tournament. He was named the tourney's most valuable player.

Sandy, once a pitcher with Vancouver Capilano, will be the man Victoria Kins will have to watch this weekend as the clubs tangle in the first two games of the B.C. play-offs, opening tonight at Vancouver.

CITY DATES CHANGED

Kins apparently threw a monkey-wrench into the machinations of the British Columbia Amateur Basketball Association when they roared past Alberni Athletics to capture the Island crown in four games. Figuring that Kins were easy prey for the Alberni club, the B.C. body scheduled a bantam tournament in Victoria next week-end which was also the date of the third and fourth game of the senior series.

But now that the senior series will be in Victoria instead of Alberni, the third and fourth games have been postponed from March 13 and 14 until March 20 and 21, meaning that Kins and Leafs will have a two-week lay-off between games, which will do neither club any good.

Kins have met Leafs three times this season, winning the first game as Johnny Clark scored 34 points, and dropping the next two games, one of which was in the Kinsmen tournament.

LEAFS FAVORED

Leafs will probably be rated as series favorites but Kins were rated as underdogs when they took on Alberni for the Island championship. They may still have something left in the bottom of their bag of tricks.

ROCKET PAIR FINED $50

SEATTLE (CP)—A display of temper will cost two Tacoma players in the Western Hockey League $50 each.

President Al Leader announced Thursday that goalie Doug Stevenson and forward Doug Adam had been fined for a display at Victoria Tuesday night.

Adam was fined for shoving linesman Ross Valliere and Stevenson for molesting goal judge Doug Bray.

Two-game, total-point playoffs in three divisions of the Saanich and Suburban Basketball League open tonight at Brentwood Hall.

Brentwood and Saanichton midget boys open the three-game card with the first game of their home-and-home series, followed by the series opener between Brentwood and Sooke bantam girls. Third game matches Brentwood and Saanichton senior men.

College Teams Seek Repeat Invasion Win

BY GEOFFREY CONWAY

Saturday is the big day for almost 150 Victoria College students.

For Saturday the city school is staging its second annual invasion of the University of British Columbia and along with 65 team members who hope to duplicate last year's victory, there are 80 boosters making the trip in a last-minute holiday-before-final exams begin.

Representing the college will be men's and women's basketball and badminton teams and soccer and rugby squads.

Last year Victoria won three out of five matches over their Vancouver counterparts and on the basis of this season's record could do just as well.

Only the men's singles section of the badminton tournament is now uncompleted as Wednesday the doubles crown went to Ron Birch and Geoff Conway for the second straight year. They downed Ron Karadimis and Danny Francis, 15-6, 15-11, after the losers had pulled a mild upset by knocking out George Forbes and Blane Coulcher.

Howe Cracks Own NHL Scoring Mark

Wings, Hawks, Bruins Score Ice Victories

Boston 5, Montreal 0
Detroit 7, New York 1
Chicago 3, Toronto 1

Gordie Howe broke a record at Detroit Thursday night, but the news in Boston is that the Bruins are still capable of playing winning hockey.

It was reasonable to expect that Howe would shatter his own National Hockey League scoring mark before the season ended, but the rejuvenation of the Bruins came as a welcome surprise to their hometown followers.

Their 5-0 victory over the second-place Montreal Canadiens came after a rough seven-game road trip, in which they picked up only a couple of ties and slipped from third to fifth place. In one evening, they climbed back into a tie with Toronto for fourth place—the lowest playoff position.

LEAFS TRIMMED

They did it with the willing assistance of the third-place Chicago Black Hawks, who knocked off the Maple Leafs 3-1.

Howe picked up two goals and three assists as Detroit Red Wings came close to clinching the league title with a 7-1 victory over New York's last-place Rangers. That gave Gordie 90 points—four more than the previous mark of 86, which he set in 1951 and equaled last season.

FIVE GOALS SHY

Howe's two goals ran his bag for the season to 45, five short of Maurice Richard's NHL mark.

Linemate Ted Lindsay matched Howe's two-goal effort. Johnny Wilson, Alex Delvecchio and Red Kelly were the other Detroit scorers while rookie Aldo Guidolin robbed Terry Sawchuk of a shutout in the last period.

The Bruins welcomed back Dave Creighton, out since New Year's night with a broken leg and observed captain Milt Schmidt's 35th birthday as Johnny Peirson scored twice and helped out on additional scoring efforts by Fleming Mackell and Bill Quackenbush.

Rookie George Red Sullivan counted the remaining Boston tally.

The Hawks, winning their second game in as many nights took an early lead on goals by George Gee and Bill Mosenko. Jimmy McFadden adding an insurance marker in the second frame. Eric Nesterenko was the lone Leaf marksman.

All clubs are idle tonight.

FLYERS LOSE, BOMBERS HERE

Tense Playoff Race Resumes

The Western Hockey League playoff race goes into another of its crucial week-end schedules tonight with the spotlight focused on three league centres.

Here in Victoria the Cougars, who trail seventh-place Seattle Bombers by three points, meet the Bombers at Memorial Arena at 8:30.

At Edmonton, the Flyers, who Thursday night lost to Saskatoon Quakers, 5-3, clash with Calgary Stampede, the cowboys having designs on second place.

At Vancouver, the runner-up Canucks host New Westminster Royals in the first of a home-and-home series between the two clubs, the Royals at home to the Canucks, Saturday.

Saturday night the Flyers move on to Calgary while the Cougars travel to Tacoma.

CLOSE BATTLE

Importance of the games is seen by the fact that only three points separate fourth-place New Westminster from seventh-place Seattle and the spread between the last five clubs is only six points.

Saskatoon's victory over Edmonton extended Quakers' margin over Vancouver Canucks to eight points.

Saskatoon's scoring was well spread through the line-up with Herb Jeffrey, Jackie McLeod, Ray Manson, Johnny Chad and Chuck McCullough getting the goals.

Vic Stasiuk scored twice for Edmonton, Len Haley getting the other goal.

Stasiuk Gains But Can't Shake Kaleta

Vic Stasiuk of Edmonton increased his Western Hockey League scoring race lead to two points Thursday night, sniping two goals in Flyers' 5-3 loss to Saskatoon.

Alex Kaleta of Saskatoon, however, assisted on two goals to continue to breathe life into Stasiuk's neck.

Stasiuk has 37 goals and 43 assists for 80 points while Kaleta has 22 goals and 56 assists for 78 points.

Four Grid Rule Changes Proposed

MONTREAL (CP)—Four major rule-change recommendations have been submitted to the Canadian Rugby Union rules committee by the Quebec Football Union, it was learned Thursday.

The rules committee, headed by Dave McCann of Ottawa, will meet in Edmonton Thursday, March 26, to prepare a slate of proposed changes for presentation to CRU authorities during a three-day meeting.

QRFU recommendations are:

1. Unlimited down-field blocking by players in the line of scrimmage.

2. Limited substitution. Players to be permitted to leave and re-enter the game only twice in each quarter.

3. Forward pass not required to cross the line of scrimmage, eliminating loose ball in play on fumbled scrum passes.

4. On third-down pass, incomplete or intercepted in the end zone, ball to go to defending side at point of third-down scrimmage.

Curling Tips

By BILLY ROSE

(This is the seventh in a series of articles on curling, written by Billy Rose, former Canadian champion from Saugeen.)

CONFIDENCE BIG ASSET

Yesterday's article saw our opponents, the Reds, start with a rock on the front ring. I will give you my idea of playing the game from this point. We are using blue rocks. I will strike the Red rock and endeavor to roll into the house, but away from the centre.

The logic behind this is to make the Red skip hesitate about striking my Blue rock because it is a difficult shot. Since the blues have last rock the Reds are anxious to get a rock in and guard it.

The game proceeds and what with good shots and a few misses, the position is as follows: The blues, that's us, are lying two counters on opposite sides of the house, and it is my third's last shot.

I call for a draw to the button. If I get it the blues lie three and we have two shots each left. Theoretically my two shots cancel his and I can count three. He must take off my shot rock and if he stays in I strike him and stay and the same thing happens with the last rock. In the event of him missing my shot rock which is now on the button I might next be tempted to lay a guard. This would be a mistake. Supposing I made a good guard, it would still be possible to curl around it and stay for shot. Then I should be faced with an extremely difficult draw shot for a counter, with my own rock as an obstacle.

So I play my rock for a fourth counter as far from the button as I can, forcing the Red skip to play at my shot rock. He cannot do anything but take it out and stay for shot in the hope of me missing.

RESPONSIBILITY

All skips should get sufficient confidence in themselves so as to play to score by making their last shot count and not dodging this responsibility. Of course it is possible for the Red skip to make a draw shot and make me play a difficult shot which I might miss, but I insist that this open style of play will pay big dividends when the chance presents itself.

BONSPIEL SURPRISE

Quebec Near Curling Title

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—A Montreal rink skipped by Ken Weldon, making its second straight try for the Canadian curling championships, led the pack "going home."

With only today's two rounds left, Weldon, who piloted his St. George four-to-five in last year's championship, won his seventh straight victory Thursday. The only defeat for the Montreal quartet came in the first round when they were dumped 14-5 by British Columbia.

The Quebec provincial champions' string of seven wins set a record for a Quebec entry. Quebec has never won the top curling event.

MANITOBA BEATEN

Highlight of Thursday's three rounds was the defeat of Ab Gowanlock's Manitoba rink in the morning by Quebec and at night by Grant Watson's Northern Ontario four, 12-7.

The two losses broke an unbeaten string of six straight victories for the Dauphin rink and left them in second spot in the standings after the ninth round.

The Montreal rink defeated

Londoner Scores Hit With Local Mat Fans

One of the fastest, most scientific and popular wrestlers ever to set foot in a local ring made a successful Pacific Northwest debut Thursday night at the Victoria Ballroom in the main event of promoter Ken Williamson's three-bout card.

Dave Jones, a recent arrival from London, England, had a full house on his feet for most of the bout with amazing feats of strength and craftiness in disposing of Tommy Martindale. Martindale took the first fall, surviving a whirlwind in which both boys locked legs and started rolling around the ring like interlocking pretzels.

Jones then combined science and speed to push Martindale

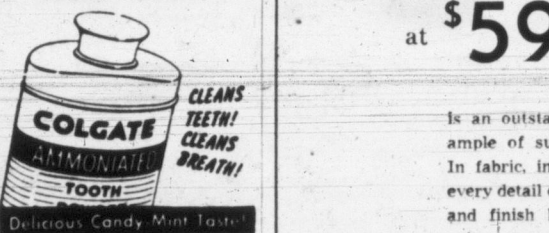

Eilers Upset

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Vancouver Kitsilano upset Vancouver Eilers 52-42 to remain in the running for the senior A women's basketball championship.

The Kitsilano squad trails the Eilers two games to one in a best-of-five series. Fourth game goes Monday.

Totems Meet Normal School

Victoria-High-Totems and Normal School clash in an exhibition basketball game in the Fernwood gym tonight at 7.15. The game will rekindle the tremendous rivalry built between the two schools in the interscholastic basketball tournament when Normal School scored a thrilling last-second victory over Totems to win the tournament trophy.

Gorge Vale Golf

Tied with net 27s, Mrs. M. Hulke and Mrs. R. Rickson split silver division honors in the recent hidden hole competition at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Mrs. J. Johnston and Mrs. R. Carroll, tied in the bronze division, each scoring 26 1/2.

Eaglettes in Hoop Final at Cumberland

Champions of the Lower Island, Eaglettes' juvenile girls hit the road for Cumberland tonight for the first half of a two-game, total-point series to decide the Vancouver Island juvenile girls' champion.

Second game of the series will be at Victoria High School Wednesday night.

Casey Gives 'The Boy' Man-Sized Yankee Job

"The boy" inherited a man-sized job today when manager Casey Stengel named Mickey Mantle the Yankees' cleanup hitter.

The move was described by Stengel as temporary but is primarily designed to free hard-working catcher Yogi Berra from the worries of the post. Mantle, always referred to as "the boy" by Stengel, definitely will open the year in the cleanup post and will be replaced by Berra only if he fails to live up to expectations.

"It has to be the boy or Berra," Stengel explained. "And I've decided to try the boy first."

The 21-year-old Mantle struck out 11 times last season but batted .311 and hit 23 home runs. He succeeds such siege guns as Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio and Berra in the key slot and is by far the youngest player ever to hit cleanup for the world champions.

ZERNIAL SIGNS

The Athletics, meanwhile, welcomed their clean-up hitter into the fold when Gus Zernial finally agreed to a contract with a bonus clause based on attendance. Zernial, who hit 29 home runs and drove in 100 runs in 1952, will draw a bigger salary than his estimated $22,500 of last season if the A's home attendance figure tops 627,100.

Manager Jimmy Dykes expects Zernial and first baseman Ed Robinson, acquired from the White Sox, to give the A's the most devastating 1-2 batting punch in the league. Not since the days of Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons have the A's combined two such sluggers in their batting order.

UMPIRE SPEAKS

Manager Paul Richards of the White Sox was bitterly criticized by umpire Ed Hurley, first baseman Eddie Waitkus

SCOTTISH SEEK FIRST SOCCER WIN SATURDAY

With league time slowly running out, Canadian Scottish of the Victoria and District Football Association will be out to engineer their first victory of the season Saturday when they take on Heaneys at Heywood Avenue at 2.30.

Greatly improved in recent outings, the Scots could move into fifth place with a victory as five ties has kept them in contention.

Adanacs, holding down second place, will also be anxious for a victory Saturday when they meet Civil Service at Heywood.

Holding a game in hand, Adanacs are four points behind first-place Victoria West and need the victory to stay on West's heels.

Labor Minister Told To Speak for Labor

Union Agent CCF'er Says Secreds Must Work Actively if Industrial Peace Sought

"It's time we had a minister of labor who would stand up on the public platform and say he agreed with the things that labor is wanting," John Squire (CCF, Alberni) told the B.C. Legislature Thursday.

Mr. Squire said the minister of trade and industry was looking after the interests of industry and business and it should be the job of the minister of labor to look after the needs of the working people. Mr. Squire said he was greatly disappointed in the policy speech given Tuesday by the Labor Minister, Lyle Wicks. He said it contained nothing more concrete than a suggestion for a round-table conference. He said Secreds would have to do more than this if they were to achieve the industrial peace they seek.

Mr. Squire, who is in private life a business agent for the IWA, said he wanted to clear up the general belief that strikes only resulted when workers wanted more money. He said this impression was wrong and unfair to the workers.

He said he had known strikes in the logging industry over cook stoves being too small. "That may sound funny," he said. "But it's important to men working on a three-shift basis when their meals can't be kept warm."

Mr. Squire spoke at great length about the logging industry and the problems of the workers.

He complained that logging concerns in his area were employing as many as 300 men at a time but working them only five or six months a year and then closing down completely.

He said this was done to save money but it would be far better for the workmen if the company gave work to only 100 men the year through. He said it was because of

BCHIS Working On Premium Cuts For Low Incomes

British Columbians in low income brackets soon will get relief from payment of hospital insurance premiums, Education Minister C.W. Rolston announced in the Legislature Thursday.

She said the government is now working out details of the plan. Other BCHIS changes will follow, she added.

Mrs. Rolston did not go into details, but she indicated the government will give low income families similar exemption to old-age pensioners.

DOES LUMBER MERGER KILL OLD TAX PACT?

John Squire (CCF, Alberni) sought to use his position as an MLA to get some free legal advice as a Port Alberni alderman when he spoke in the B.C. Legislature Thursday.

Mr. Squire asked Attorney-General Robert Bonner if the proposed merger of the Port Alberni and Alberni pulp mills would kill an old tax agreement which his city had with Bloedel's pulp mill was no longer effective.

Mr. Squire said that if the agreement, which provided a fixed assessment for the Bloedel mill, was no longer in force, the city of Port Alberni would stand to collect between $87,000 and $90,000 extra revenue which, he said, would be put to good use building roads and new schools.

Mr. Squire said he didn't expect the Attorney-General to give him an immediate answer but hoped he would look into it.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTÉ ROBERTS

THE LITTLE SQUIRREL

There was a little squirrel
Who had a curly tail,
He climbed up a tree,
To see what he could see,
But when he got to the top,
All he heard was a great big pop.
He saw a big baboon,
Who had just popped his balloon?

All constituents will guess, from the above, that the latest edition of the Cedar Hill-Douglas schools edition of "Tiny Times" publication has arrived.

It has indeed—eight charming pages of philosophy, humor, higher education, adventure, and pathos.

The delightful poem which appears above is the brain child of Carol Blake, Grade 4, one of the many contributors who make Tiny Times such an excellent publication.

Even a casual sampling of the contents will serve to illustrate its high quality.

Murray Johns, in a brief and pungent paragraph, defines the whole problem of transportation, explains the solution, and adds a brief editorial comment:

"Bicycles are for going smaller distances. Cars, buses and trains carry you longer distances on land. Boats and planes carry you over water and oceans. So you see it would be dull without transportation."

Bernice Owen, Grade 2, can look forward with confidence to future success as a female journalist of the sister variety. Even now she writes graphically:

"I was in the house and the chimney caught on fire. Mummy was afraid and she was shaking—so was I, and so was my baby sister."

An understanding of the modern, or blank, approach to verse is shown by Ann Hastings, Grade 7:

"I like this school,
It's fun to come,
But some don't know it."

But I think my favorite contribution in the current Tiny Times is the following allegorical narrative which seems to summarize, very neatly, one of the main causes of the world's woes:

THREE HUNTERS

One day three hunters went hunting. The first hunter wanted to catch a wolf, the second a bear, and the third a tiger. The first saw a rabbit go into a hole but he didn't want a rabbit. The second saw a duck fly into the air but he didn't want a duck. The third saw a tiger and that was what he wanted. So he shot it. The first and second heard the shot and came to see what it was. When they saw that their youngest brother had shot what he wanted, they were surprised, and then they grew sadder because they hadn't got what they wanted. So the youngest went home while the other two went on. Then the first saw a bear and shot it. The second saw a wolf and shot it. Then they said to each other, "You got what I wanted." And they were mad. They didn't even think of trading. So they got madder and madder.

Judy Paret, Grade 3.

To help the Esquimalt Canadian Legion raise funds for hospital comforts the Royal Canadian Naval Band will give a concert at Esquimalt High School next Wednesday at 8 p.m. assisted by the Esquimalt High School choir. Stan James' concert party will contribute to the program.

W. C. Cryer, president of Victoria Unit 12, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada, was honored on his 65th birthday with the presentation of a life membership badge and certificate. Following the ceremony, held during the regular meeting of the unit, a short address was given by T. R. Wheadon, provincial command president.

City Council's finance committee today approved payment of $450 annual dues to the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

STEALS NINE-MILE RIDE

Woodward Farm Tractor Mount for Wandering Tar

A nine-mile ride on a tractor stolen from the West Saanich farm of W. C. Woodward, former lieutenant-governor, brought fines totaling $100 to a young sailor in Central Saanich and Saanich police courts Thursday.

George R. Amyotte, HMCS New Waterford, was fined $30 for taking a tractor without the consent of the owner, and two $25 fines for driving an unlicensed vehicle on the highway and "driving without a license." Court was told the sailor's unusual "mount" was approaching the city at 5 a.m. when police took over.

The tractor was taken from the farm early Thursday morning, and apparently was driven past the Royal Oak police station just before officers arrested accused.

Sharp, raking prow of HMCS Cayuga knifed into Dockyard's No. 5 jetty Thursday afternoon, left this gaping hole in the heavy planking. Ship was coming in for landing after her first trials in Juan de Fuca Strait since extensive refit and recommissioning. Damage to dock is about $8,000.

Cayuga Rams Jetty; Navy Holds Inquiry

Newly Refitted Vessel Surveyed After Pier Gashed

Navy technicians today are surveying HMCS Cayuga, a 1,000-ton destroyer, only just out of refit, for possible serious damage following her collision with a jetty in HMC Dockyard Thursday.

The ship gashed a 25-foot wedged-shaped chunk out of the heavy wooden planking on Jetty 5 when making a landing at 4:46 p.m.

Damage to the dock is estimated at $8,000.

A fully naval inquiry is proceeding. Eye-witnesses say the ship was approaching her berth slowly, when her stern seemed to swing towards HMCS Lavmore, tied up alongside a parallel pier.

SEVERED FENDERS

Cayuga seemed to surge ahead momentarily, and her sharp, raking stem bit into the jetty. Her bows actually cut between the chained ends of two heavy fender logs, pushed them aside and splintered one like a matchstick as she ground into the plank and piling of the wharf.

Commanded by Lieut. Commander William P. Hayes, Cayuga, veteran of two tours of duty in Korean waters, was returning from her first day of sea trials in Juan de Fuca Strait following extensive refit and recommissioning.

EXTENSIVE REFIT

Her refit included installation of a new aluminum four-legged mast, twin quick-firing three-inch guns and costly, modern electrical gear.

She was more than seven months in the hands of dockyard, considered a record for speed on such a job.

Cayuga is expected to return to Korean duty as soon as her working-up exercises are completed.

Saanich Allowed Counter Claim in Complicated Case

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane today allowed the Municipality of Saanich to amend its statement of claim against B. Singh, who is seeking in a civil suit to force Saanich council to give him a permit for the reconstruction of two old houses on Whittier Avenue.

The houses have been condemned. B. Singh has offered to reconstruct them in accordance with the municipality's building by-laws.

The application to amend was made by Robert A. Wootton, counsel for the municipality. Joseph McKenna, Q.C., counsel for B. Singh, opposed the move to change the municipality's claim against his client.

Mr. Wootton asked the claim be amended to allow the municipality to counter-claim against B. Singh when the trial is held. In the counter-claim the municipality will also seek a mandatory order directing B. Singh to pull down his two houses.

B. Singh launched his suit against the municipality when it refused to grant him a permit. The council at the time contended that the plaintiff had moved the two houses without first obtaining a permit from the municipality's building inspector.

No date has yet been set for the trial. It is expected that the case will be heard next month.

MONTREAL MAN CHARGED WITH SECURITY BREACH

A French-speaking Canadian, formerly of Montreal, pleaded guilty in Esquimalt police court today to an offense under new National Defense security regulations.

Admitting the trespassing offense was Jean Paul De LaDurantie, 26. He entered his plea through an interpreter. He was found on HMC Dockyard property Thursday afternoon without legal authority.

With no fixed local address, he was remanded to the regular court session next Monday afternoon for sentence.

It is the first charge laid in this area of this nature. Naval security officials, however, pointed out that there have been two charges under the act in Kamloops in the last few months.

Power Shortage Faces Island, Weston Warns

Hydro Official Claims Butte Dam Won't Hurt Recreation Interests

A power "brown out" is imminent on Vancouver Island within the next two years.

This was the warning given a special legislative committee concerned with the B.C. Power Commission's plan to dam Butte Lake for storage for the John Hart hydro-electric development on the Campbell River system, when S. R. Weston, commission chairman, appeared as a witness today.

Damming of Butte Lake is possible "with little or no injury to the public interest in recreation," Mr. Weston contended, as he appeared for the first time at hearings on the question.

He assured the committee the commission had looked into all aspects of the situation, including the raising of the water level which would follow damming.

If the commission's plans had to be scrapped, he said, Vancouver Island would be deprived of 35,000 horsepower of low-cost energy.

"If, on the other hand, you permit the lake to be used for storage, it will benefit all the people on the island and all other customers of the commission, wherever located," he asserted.

Mr. Weston acknowledged the commission had plans for eventually using Upper Campbell Lake for further development of power but Upper Campbell could not be considered an alternative site to Butte, he said.

If the commission were to be prevented from using Butte Lake it would not develop Upper Campbell, because such an undertaking could not be justified economically.

Upper Campbell Lake, he emphasized, "can never be considered as a power site unless storage is available above in Butte Lake."

Mr. Weston complained that the commission had to get around it a person had to have a boat or plane or be a mountain climber—"and a good one."

He said people who thought that someday they would be able to drive into the lake and drive all the way around it were only fooling themselves. It would be impossible to build such a road, he said, without paying out a fantastic amount of money.

Firemen Claim Privilege To Live Where They Like

Victoria firemen's union today challenged the legality of the city's order that firemen must live within a three-mile circle.

A delegation headed by Ed Ball, vice-president of the union, met City Council's finance committee.

The union asks that firemen have the right to live in any of the municipalities adjacent to Victoria. It challenges the legality of the city imposing "new working conditions" over those set forth in their contract.

It rejected a three-mile circle proposed by finance committee at its last meeting with the union and instructed the executive to invoke the grievance procedure clause in the union's working agreement.

The union also protested the manner in which the committee handled the matter. It states the committee put a by-law to council restricting firemen to the three-mile circle before the union had returned with its decision on the proposal.

IN GOOD FAITH

"We have acted in good faith," said Mr. Ball.

Ald. Percy Scurrell, chairman, stated the committee had also acted in good faith and suggested another meeting shortly. Union representatives agreed.

"For ourselves we don't care where you live but the public must be protected, that is our only concern," said Ald. Scurrell.

Ald. Frank Mulliner took issue with the union representatives stating that two or three firemen "absolutely defied the city" in establishing homes outside the city limits, under a previous fire chief.

Truck Driver Charge Sequel To Fatality

Allegedly Failed To Place Flares

Police have charged the driver of a parked truck involved in a fatal traffic accident in Saanich last week.

Robert Gregory Allen, 316 Simcoe, was remanded to March 12 when he appeared in Saanich court Thursday on a charge of failing to place flares near the truck to warn approaching traffic of its position on the road.

It is alleged his Merchants' Transfer Ltd. truck broke down and was left on the road.

The driver of a small car, which crashed into the rear of the three-ton flat-deck truck, killing 28-year-old Mrs. Eva Mitchell, Cordova Bay, has been charged with manslaughter.

The driver, Harry G. Mills, 60, of Prospect Lake, also appeared in court Thursday, and was given a week's remand.

He was absolved from blame by a coroner's jury which investigated the fatality after the charge was laid against him.

The truck driver, Gregory Allen, faces a possible fine of $500.

CABINET MINISTER PRAISES TIMES' EDUCATION ARTICLES

Articles on Education Week, appearing in the Victoria Times, were recommended as good reading by Education Minister Tilly Ralston in the Legislature Thursday.

The minister referred to articles written in a special series by J. F. K. English, senior municipal school inspector in Victoria; Rev. Mair A. J. Waters, First United Church, and Mrs. W. W. McGill, Greater Victoria School Board trustee.

"This discussion is good," said Mrs. Ralston. "It shows a lively interest in one of the most important phases of our life today."

She said criticism of education should not be deplored "because it has been out of criticism that improvements have come, and surely this is a free country."

5-Day Week Expected For Federal Men Here

Canadian government employees in Victoria have "every reason" to expect granting of the five-day week, effective April 1, according to G. K. Samson, official of the Civil Servants' Federation of Canada.

Victoria was omitted from the original list of 21 cities when the shorter work week was granted.

"Our representations have been well received in Ottawa," he said. "The secretary of the Civil Service Commission, G. Bland, stated that if we could show more than 60 per cent of other industries in Victoria have the five-day week, we would get it.

"We have submitted figures, through the Unemployment Insurance Commission, proving that of firms with 10 or more workers, 74 per cent are on the short week; of those with 100 or more workers, 83.9 per cent are on the short week."

"We have also received excellent support from MP's representing Vancouver Island and Vancouver."

"I am confident the five-day week will be granted."

Members of the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada met here Thursday night and decided to have their national secretary make formal protest against Victoria's exclusion from the plan.

GOVERNMENT CAR BUYING QUESTIONED

The provincial government's method of purchasing automobiles is the subject of questions placed on the Legislature's order paper by Mrs. Nancy Hodge (Lib. Victoria).

She has asked Finance Minister Einar Gunderson if the government requires an "arbitrary 10 per cent discount from a automobile regular prices before any tender will be considered."

Mrs. Hodge also wants to know if the same discount is requested on other purchases.

B.C. ELECTION GUESSING

June Poll Date Seen Despite Delay Hint

By GORDON FORBES

Times Legislative Reporter Education Minister Tilly Ralston hinted to the Legislature Thursday that the Social Credit government may be delaying its plans for an early B.C. election, but sources close to the cabinet insisted today it is still planning an appeal to the country as soon as the session is over.

These sources suggest the election probably will come early in June—a delay from original plans for a May election because the session is dragging out. A period of 63 days is required to hold an election and there seems no hope now election steps could be initiated sooner than early April.

Mrs. Ralston said in the House that "while we do not seek an immediate election, we are not afraid of one, and, in fact when the time is ripe, we will welcome a new test before the electors."

Some observers interpreted this—coming from a leading cabinet minister—as meaning a switch in Premier Bennett's announced plan to go to the country in the early summer.

Opposition members suggested the government may feel it has alienated large blocks of opinion, such as the teachers, civil service, labor membership and the Union of B.C. Municipalities, by its policies, and thus would prefer to delay a vote.

However, a top Social Credit spokesman said: "We are just as popular in the country as ever. Mrs. Ralston's statement probably means the government is no longer courting defeat in the House right away."

Three fresh Sabre-jet squadrons will fly from Canada to European bases within the next few days. Among their personnel will go Victoria officers and other ranks. They will take off from Goose Bay, Labrador, touching down on Greenland, Iceland and Scotland, on their way to Zweibrücken, Germany, to form No. 3 RCAF Fighter Wing. What's Up? Mostly Down—
Say Local Green Grocers

By PENNY SAVER

Seven down, five up, green peas out and Delicious apples have two strikes on them. Before Bill Walker begs me to write his sports column I had better explain.

On the going up side, we have Emperor grapes with a price increase of one cent, now 23 cents a pound.

Oranges are putting up a grim tussle, from their former low of two pounds for 17 cents, they have only slipped half a cent to three pounds for 25 cents. Remember, you get the medium size for that price.

Tomatoes are down three cents to 22 cents for a 14-ounce tube. On bulk carrots you will save four cents at the new price of three pounds for 29 cents.

Those beautiful cauliflower have headily repriced themselves up another three cents to 29 cents a pound. This is an increase of six cents in about three weeks. Someone must be buying them!

The green broccoli, not to be outdone, is up from 19 cents to a new high of 21 cents a pound.

Good news for a change—new potatoes that were selling at 11 cents a pound are now priced at three pounds for 25 cents.

Avocados are now 17 cents each, a saving of two cents. Imported parsnips from California are 12 cents a pound, formerly 16 cents.

Rome Beauty apples are down a penny to two pounds for 23 cents. Absolutely down and out, are green peas from California.

Before the bottom drops out of this column I had better put in a stop by mentioning that rhubarb is up two cents to 17 cents a pound. Lettuce is also higher at 16 cents. Pink Florida grapefruit from a former 13 cents a pound is now two pounds for 27 cents.

Do you know that Delicious apples are off the market in Vancouver, but we on the Island can still get them at 15 cents a pound? Just don't sit around too long.

The message on the Cal-Trop Dates package says "Good eating anytime, anyway." Nineteen cents for eight ounces.

Hump at Back of Neck?
Exercise Will Help You

Q—"I have pretty good posture but at some time in my life I must not have had because I have a big hump at the back of my neck—the base of it—which spoils my looks. I cannot understand this because my back is straight."

A.—Usually when we slump in posture we slump all over, however, it is possible to have a good back except for that hump you mention. Many women who keep their chests lifted allow their heads to protrude forward. They sort of "give in" at the neck. In order to avoid this straighten your spine all the way—keep your chin parallel to the floor and push toward the ceiling with the top of your head.

Sex Knowledge Not Cause
Of High Divorce Rate

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD.

There is no question about the fact that young people of today have far more knowledge of sex than their parents or grandparents. The writer of the following letter feels this is responsible for our increasing divorce rate. She says:

(Q) "I am planning to be married, and I would like to read a book on sex. I want to know something about it, but I believe people would be happier if they didn't stress sex so much. Sex knowledge doesn't seem to be solving anything. There is more sex knowledge now than ever before, and more marriage failures and broken homes than ever before. As my mother puts it, there is nothing about sex that merits so much of our time and attention."

(A) I agree with you that you should be reasonably and accurately informed about sex before you marry. I suggest that you ask your doctor to recommend a book he thinks will be suitable for you.

I do not agree, however, with your implication that ignorance of sex would prevent divorces and would guarantee marriage success. It is true that there were fewer divorces and broken homes in the days when sex knowledge was less emphasized than it is today, but you cannot treat this as a cause-and-effect relationship.

You must take into consideration the marked change in moral standards that has taken place in the past 25 years or so. Divorce is not frowned upon as it used to be, and a divorced person is no longer ostracized. People who, several generations ago, would never have dreamed of breaking up their marriages because of social pressures they would have to face, do so today without having to consider such obstacles. As for preoccupation with sex, I agree with your mother that this is unwholesome. However, after all the taboos on sex until recently, it is perfectly natural that the subject is openly discussed now that these taboos are gone.

The Indian legend of the Forbidden Plateau will be told in words and song on Saturday afternoon and evening at the Potlatch in Bay Street Armory, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to Veterans' Hospital.

Composed by Winnifred Lugin Fahey the dramatic aria will be presented by Victoria's outstanding baritone, Stanley Martin, who will wear the full regalia of an Indian chief.

"I have attempted to present the legend in true Indian fashion," Mme. Fahey says, "with very little music and only a few notes. The composition, of necessity, expresses a certain primitive legend—portrayed by Mme. Fahey in the following words:

As we stood upon the headland,
As we gazed across the water,
Water that divided distance
Of our island and the mainland.
Dancing was that sun-kissed water
Soaring were the white-winged seagulls.
And the rocks and sea and mountains
Filled the land with might and grandeur.

Then we saw far in the distance
War canoes approaching shorewards.
Then we heard the cries and shouting
Far above the mew of seagulls.
And we knew the men approaching
To be warriors from the mainland.

Quickly then we ran to campground
To the lodges and our women.
"Haste!" we said, "unto the plateau,
That is reached by hidden pathways.
Oh ye women and ye children
Haste ye now unto the plateau."

And they climbed the paths to safety.
Then the war cries growing louder
Off we took us to the battle.
Swiftly flew the deadly arrows
Wildly grew the frightful battle.
All day long we fought them bravely
Fought the screaming hordes of warriors
To defend our land and people
From the cruelty and the slaughter.

When the evening sun was sinking
Like a globe of fire shining
As it dropped into the ocean,
All the warriors were departed
To their campground on the mainland.

Then our braves and gallant chieftains
Hastened to the distant mountains,
Hastened to the far-off plateau.
For the women and the children,
Searched we there until the moonlight
Touched the trees with shining silver,
But no women and no children
Answered to our cries of anguish.

Whither went they? No man knoweth!

Pensioners — Following a business session at meeting of Old Age Pensioners' Association, Branch 5, new members were welcomed in March were honored. Songs and readings were enjoyed and refreshments served by the ladies' auxiliary.

Civic Affairs — Mrs. Elsie Shepherd, executive secretary, Town Planning Commission, presented a comprehensive picture of the commission's work at this week's meeting of the civic affairs group of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club. A lively discussion period followed. Plans were made for a panel discussion in April with speakers from four other women's clubs taking part, the subject, "Why Women Should Take an Interest in Affairs of Government." Miss Verna Beek presided and welcomed members from the University Women's Club and a visitor in the city, Mrs. C. Thurman, Nelson, B.C. Next meeting will be held in the BPW club room on April 7 when four members of the group will lead a discussion on proposed amalgamation of four municipalities.

To mark the occasion of the 21st birthday of their son, W. Alan Blair, an informal family dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. William Blair at their home, 1364 Hillside Avenue, Wednesday evening. Invited guests were Mrs. M. Blair, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dodd, Mrs. G. V. Stewart, Mrs. John Blythe, Miss Marjorie Blythe and Mr. Michael Blythe.

Victorian Attends Fisheries Luncheon in Canada's Capital

Miss Echo Lidster, Victoria, was amongst a group of provincial home economists from Newfoundland to British Columbia, who were guests at a luncheon last Tuesday in the test kitchen of the home economics section of the federal department of fisheries in the west block of the House of Parliament at Ottawa.

Other guests included Miss Glenora Pearce and Miss Margaret Patillo, Saskatoon; James Moore and Mrs. W. F. Hayes, Ottawa; Miss E. P. Eddie, Toronto; Miss Betty Johnston, Fredericton, N.B.; Miss Jean Munro, Truro, N.S.; Miss Eleanor Blackie, Annapolis Royal, N.S.; Miss Alice Grant, Montreal; Dr. F. McNeill, St. John's, Newfoundland; Mrs. A. H. Hoefler, Ithaca, N.Y. and Mrs. E. Summers, Northill, Ont.

The home economists, who are in Ottawa attending the annual convention of the Canadian Council of 411 Clubs, were welcomed by Miss Edith Elliott, chief of the department of fisheries home economics section.

To Buy Blankets — It was decided at meeting of Ladies' Auxiliary to the YMCA that 31 blankets will be purchased for the dormitory and a rummage sale will be held in mid-April, at the "Y." Final arrangements were made for the spring tea next Thursday afternoon, from 3 to 5, in the Mural Room. Afternoon tea was served by the hostess, Mrs. A. L. Lock, presided and Mrs. E. G. Rowbottom expressed thanks of the group.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

By EDWIN JORDAN, MD

Seek Advice if Simple Means Don't Check Chronic Fatigue

All of us suffer fatigue some times, but there are some people who are just always tired, seemingly without any reason. The proper balance between work, recreation and sleep has to be worked out, of course. Change of occupation is not often recommended in these cases, because it usually does not succeed. Many people need to learn how to relax when they have the chance. The adoption of a balanced diet with plenty of vitamins is beneficial where the abnormal fatigue is at least partly due to faulty diet. Some stimulating drugs are dangerous and should not be used unless under the advice of a physician.

CAUSE OBSCURE

Some who complain of being fatigued cannot identify the cause so easily. A true disease is sometimes at fault. For example, an anaemia often shows up by lack of pep. People who suffer from chronic infections or disturbed bodily functions are also likely to feel tired all the time. Broken arches, overweight and many similar conditions also show by producing a state of chronic fatigue. Diabetes, heart disease, tuberculosis, vitamin deficiencies, low blood pressure and low metabolism are among the disorders which may be discovered.

NEED RIGHT TREATMENT

When a definite physical condition can be found the proper treatment can be started. Each disease must be attacked by the measures which have been shown to be useful. Those who are abnormally tired should first review and study the kind of life they are leading to make sure that they cannot solve the problem by simple means. If this cannot be done then the advice of a physician is indicated. If some physical cause, such as one of those mentioned—can be found, treatment is likely to be effective.

FORT'S SITE

Holland Pt. Named for 'Bay' Officer

Mystery of how Holland Point, off Dallas Road at the foot of Menzies Street, got its name, which has puzzled the provincial archives and city parks department for many months, was cleared up Thursday.

The point is believed named after a George Holland who served with the Hudson's Bay Co. and Sir James Douglas from 1832 onward.

City parks officials received this word from the hydrographic department of the British Admiralty at London.

A search of original documents failed to give definite information as to the person after whom the point was named. J. A. Scarborough, surveyor, who reported to the Hudson's Bay Co. in 1844, was said to have selected all the names in the area, with the exception of Clover Point.

A parks spokesman said Holland Point was the site of an ancient fortified Indian village "long before the white man came."

"The earth works are still visible," he said. "A semi-circular trench on the landward side protected the Indians from attack by land, while they could see any possible invasion from the sea, being established on a point of the coastline."

Panel Discussion on School Program Ends Education Week

A panel discussion on the controversial topic "Are the Basic Subjects Being Neglected in the Modern School Curriculum?" is a feature of the current Education Week sponsored by the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, and to be aired over CJVI, 8.30 p.m. Saturday.

The panel is composed of the following well-known people, some of whom have expressed divergent views in the press recently: Reg McKay, principal, George Jay School; Bernard C. Gillie, principal, S. J. Willis Junior High School; H. L. Smith, principal, Victoria High School; H. K. Bate, Saanich councillor; A. C. Wurtele, Reeve of Esquimalt; and Art Stott, Associate Editor of the Victoria Daily Times.

Mayor Claude L. Harrison refused to appear on the panel, W. D. Oliver, chairman of the association's public relations committee, disclosed today.

Another radio program Thursday night featured music and drama presented by students of the Greater Victoria School District and student teachers from the Normal School.

"Catherine Parr," a radio adaptation based on an incident in the life of the much-married Henry VIII, is the play presented by students from the Provincial Normal School, Victoria. Band music by the S. J. Willis band, directed by Mr. C. H. Denike, and singing by Grade VII students of Tillicum elementary school under the direction of Mr. Dan Parfitt, completes the program.

Dr. F. T. Fairly, deputy minister and superintendent of education, will be guest speaker at an Education Week banquet sponsored by local teachers this Saturday night at Chez Marcel.

SCHOOL CORONATION PROGRAM

A large picture of Queen Elizabeth will be placed in every B.C. schoolroom this year, Education Minister Tilly Rolston informed the Legislature Thursday.

In addition, a special "Coronation program" will be held in all schools June 1, the day before the Coronation.

"This will be an inspiration to many young people to realize the responsibilities the young Queen has shouldered, and to urge on our youth a sense of responsibility," said Mrs. Rolston.

AN AGE OF GREATNESS

From The Netherlands came disturbing news for Elizabeth's England. The Duke of Anjou's campaign against the Spaniards was going badly. Spain was winning victories while the Duke was winning—games of tennis! Anjou, the unlikely of liberators and lovers, was soon on his way home to France as empty-handed as he had been sent from England.

In England another plot against Elizabeth was confessed by Francis Throgmorton. Mendoza, the Spanish ambassador, was involved and ordered home. Refused a ship to take him to France, he retreated insolently "Don Bernardino de Mendoza was born not to disturb countries, but to conquer them." This breach with Spain was another step towards inevitable war.

Now Anjou was dead, with none to mourn him. Now William of Orange, last hope of the defiant Netherlands, was shot down by an assassin. One by one the enemies of Spain were disappearing from the scene. The Netherlands was Spain's! France was on the brink of civil war! Only Elizabeth remained to be dealt with. (Tomorrow: England Fights.)

UBC Pharmacy Dean Says
Trained Hands Too Few

The demand for trained pharmacists is greater than the supply, according to Dr. A. W. Matthews, dean of the faculty of pharmacy at UBC.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Victoria and District UBC Alumni Association here Thursday night, he said the demand is sharpened by the Pharmacy Act, which says a registered pharmacist must be in attendance at all times in a drug store. The act is meant to protect the public, not the pharmacist, he stated.

There are 200 new drug stores in B.C. since the war, he added, and he noted that Victoria had the first drug store in the Pacific Northwest. It was owned by Thomas Shotbolt and is at present located at 589 Johnson, under the old name.

Re-elected at the meeting were honorary president, Neil B. McCallum; president, Barry Ford; and first vice-president, Gilbert J. Smith.

Elected as second vice-president was Roy Temple; treasurer, Wilf Pendray; secretary, Mrs. Margaret Dempsey, and executive members included past president W. M. McCarter, R. C. Ellis, G. L. Ainscough, W. Gaddes, Miss B. Sutton, W. D. McCubbin, Mrs. A. Bain.

Stalin's death is a blow to all humanity. Stalin is immortal. Vishinsky apparently received the news of Stalin's death shortly after it occurred at 1:30 p.m. EST Thursday.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The flag flew at half staff today at United Nations headquarters for Josef V. Stalin, "one of its founders."

Within the marble and glass building, delegates went ahead with a desultory debate on the Korean war. It was destined to get no place because the master of the Kremlin was dead and the world waited for new indications of policy from his successor or successors.

Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, who fought the diplomatic end of the Korean war here, was about to embark for Moscow to attend the funeral of his dictator-premier and consult with new Soviet leaders on the future. Vishinsky issued a simple statement:

Kitimat to Incorporate

Kitimat, the centre of Alcan's giant aluminum development in northern B.C., will be incorporated as a municipality under a bill introduced in the Legislature Thursday.

The new municipality will name a municipal manager under the Municipal Manager Act, becoming the third B.C. district to set up that position. Victoria and West Vancouver are the only others.

Kitimat residents will elect a reeve and council this year before the regular December municipal elections. Candidates must be property owners who have lived in the centre for three months.

How COLDS affect YOUR KIDNEYS

The kidneys are very delicate organs, easily affected, especially by a cold. Their duty is to filter impurities and excess acids from the blood. When you have a cold—or any other ailment which creates added poisons in the system—extra work is thrown upon your kidneys. To help keep the kidneys in good order, to help clear your system of excess acids and poisons caused by colds or other ailments, use DODD'S Kidney Pills. Non-habit forming—easy to take.

COMMUNITY RUNS NEW PRO-REC PLAN

Education Minister Tells House Why Budget Was Slashed

A complete re-organization and streamlining of B.C.'s Pro-Rec activities, shifting considerable responsibility into local communities, was outlined in the Legislature Thursday by Education Minister Tilly Rolston.

It was the first official explanation of the government's action in cutting the Pro-Rec appropriation from $138,000 to $75,000 in 1953-54. A storm of protests followed the reduction.

Here is a summary of the new plan:

1. The existing physical education organization will be "expanded" by establishment of a "community programs division" under the general direction of Dr. Harold P. Johns, the present director of guidance. R. J. Phillips, the acting director of Pro-Rec, will be assistant director of the new department.

2. Grants similar to those now paid for night schools will be paid to school boards and community organizations which operate approved self-help recreational and physical programs.

3. Four additional district consultants will be posted. Their duty will be to stimulate, encourage and assist in development of local recreational and keep-fit groups. All the new consultants are on the mainland, bringing the total to nine in B.C.

4. The new branch will continue the policy of making monthly grants of $50 to combined local community recreational groups who employ a full-time director—or "or who need some little assistance in getting started."

5. The community services branch will assume "some" responsibility for training local physical and recreational leaders.

GET NEW JOBS

The new organization, Mrs. Rolston said, will dispense with the services of three civil servants. Two will be absorbed as physical education teachers in schools and the third already has been offered a place.

She didn't think the change will put anybody out of work because seasonal instructors probably will be employed by the local community groups.

Effect of the new plan is that the government's contribution to Pro-Rec will be mainly advisory and supervisory.

"The government should not be responsible for the actual instruction of local classes," said Mrs. Rolston.

She recognized, however, that in certain areas where no local groups exist it may be necessary for the government branch to conduct classes. But as a general rule these duties will be undertaken by local community groups.

Mrs. Rolston made no secret of her dislike for many phases of the Pro-Rec system in the past. Noting it was started in depression days, she said as economic conditions improved the urgent need for its services diminished and certain undesirable features crept in.

UNDESIRABLE FEATURES

Briefly, here they are:

1. Centres were opened with out regard to need.

2. Too many groups were provided with Pro-Rec facilities and instruction. The only limitation was the annual budget provided by the government.

3. Efforts were duplicated, and the program came to emphasize physical fitness almost to the exclusion of other forms of recreation.

4. Newspaper advertising was bought in an effort to draw attendance away from voluntary organizations. There was a tendency to measure success only by numbers enrolled.

"The existing organization, begun as a depression years measure, has partially become outmoded," said Mrs. Rolston.

TEACHERS, MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES BENEFIT

$12-$18 Hike Per Service-Year Is Civil Staff Pension Plan

Pensions of civil servants, municipal employees and school teachers will be increased under the terms of three bills introduced in the Legislature Thursday.

1. A bill amending the Civil Service Superannuation Act, introduced by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, provides supplementary pensions to be paid from the date of retirement to the time when the employee qualifies for the federal old-age pension at age 70.

The supplementary benefit is $1 a month for each year of service, plus 50 cents in the case of a married person.

Terms of the bill are retroactive to July 1, 1952.

2. A bill introduced by Attorney-General Robert Bonner to amend the Teachers' Pension Act would increase the present rate of $21 per year for each year of service to $30 a year for the first 20 years, and $37.50 for each year over 20.

Thus, a teacher with 40 years' service would be paid a pension of $12.50 a month, compared with $70 under the present system.

A 30-years' service pension would amount to $81.25 a month, compared with $32.50 at present. The bill provides for a one per cent reduction in employer

IMMIGRANTS BRING OWN 'CABIN HOME'

Geoffrey Blake and his wife from Bristol, England, are taking no chances on not being able to find housing accommodation when they arrive in Victoria later this month.

They are bringing their "cabin home" with them. It's a cruiser.

With their nine-month-old son, Rodney, the Blakes arrived at Saint John, N.B., aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France.

Fearing he might have difficulty finding a place to live, Mr. Blake arranged to have his 36-foot cabin cruiser shipped to Victoria. It is expected March 20.

A naval architect by trade, Mr. Blake built the boat with the assistance of his wife. It took them two years to complete. The Blakes plan to live aboard.

contribution to the retirement fund. Thus, both employer and employee each will pay six per cent of salaries into this fund.

RETIREMENT BILLS

The bill provides further that male and female teachers may retire at age 60 but would not make retirement compulsory until 65. Present regulations require women to retire at 60, men at 65.

The act would become effective April 1, 1953.

3. A bill amending the Municipal Superannuation Act calls for increases in contribution to superannuation funds by both employer and employee.

Employees will benefit by an estimated $2 per month for each year of service.

Employee contribution would be raised from four to five per cent and employers would pay 8½ instead of seven per cent of wages.

Amendments would become effective April 1, 1953.

A Family Compensation Act amendment, brought in by Mrs. Nancy Hodges (Lib., Victoria), permits an illegitimate child to recover damages for death of its parents because of negligence of a third party. Legitimate children already have this protection.

SCHOOLS AND THE COMMUNITY

MRS. MOUTRAY

PTA Movement Benefits Child

By JEANNE C. MOUTRAY

President, Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council

The parent-teacher movement was begun 56 years ago by people who believed that it was the right of every child to have an adequate preparation for adult life. They believed that, not only should he be trained to earn his living, but that he should also be able to face life with courage, assurance and an understanding of his fellow human beings. This preparation is even more necessary today, due to the complex nature of our way of life. For this reason, parents and teachers are co-operating in the training and guidance of children and youth.

Parent-teacher associations are formed to enable parents, teachers, and anyone interested in the welfare of the child, to study common problems. There are 31 such associations with a membership of approximately 4,000 in the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council. Each association serves the needs of its own school, and joins others in the council for guidance and the study of common problems.

Parents Share Responsibility

Every child in B.C. goes to school or has the opportunity for schooling. However, the school is not the sole educator of the child. Parent-Teacher is also concerned with the relation of the child to two other great educators, the home and the community.

The home has, perhaps, the greatest influence of any on the life of the child. It is the right of every child to have a home where love and peace abide. Such a home, with parents who understand him and are willing to be the real custodians of his welfare, sets his feet firmly on the path to becoming a well integrated personality.

How can young parents understand the needs of a child? Parent-Teacher attempts to meet this need with a parent-education program in the form of discussion groups, lectures by authorities on child welfare, and radio programs dealing with problems of child-training. The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation, in conjunction with the Extension Department of the University of British Columbia, has prepared many discussion group courses. A few of these are: Child Psychology for Parents; The Child from One to Six; Adolescence and Marriage and Family Relations.

Interest in Community Affairs

When the child reaches school age, he takes his first step out into the world. The wise parent goes right along with him and takes an interest in his school life. This may be done by joining a Parent-Teacher Association. Parent-Teacher members endeavour to understand the school and assist in interpreting it in all its aspects to the public. They keep informed on educational matters by means of lectures, forums, discussions, literature and radio programs. Parents and teachers co-operate to obtain the best for every child according to his physical, mental and social needs. The policies and programs of Parent-Teacher are educational, but they do not interfere with school administration or seek to direct school policies.

The accomplishments of Parent-Teacher have been numerous. To mention a very few, they have: Equipped school libraries; provided pianos, projectors, radios; sponsored art, music and drama classes; and promoted higher standards of home and school life.

Parent-Teacher also recognizes the influence of the community on the life of the child. For this reason, they have endeavored to raise the standards of community life by the promotion of adequate legislation for the care and protection of children and youth. They are alert to those influences which may be detrimental to the welfare of children, and support those which are beneficial.

11 CHILDREN IN 6 YEARS; FAMILY'S PROBLEM TOLD

Wat is it like for a family that has 11 children in six years?

Paul and Rosa Tremblay of St. Joseph D'Alma in Quebec know full well for they had five sets of twins and one boy in this period. Their story is told in Weekend Picture Magazine which appears with Saturday's issue of the Times.

An article on Douglas Fairbanks Jr.'s glittering social life in London; a color layout on Lady Alexander's kitchen; and a piece about "The Gunner," Canada's top gate-crasher, are other top features in the Weekend edition.

MALENKOV NAMED

Sorrowing Miles-Long Line Waits to Pass Coffin

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) Soviet citizens by the thousands filed past the bier of Joseph Stalin today in last tribute to the Soviet prime minister, felled by a stroke and heart failure.

Lines waiting to enter the beautiful Hall of Columns to view the body extended for miles into the suburbs.

Men, women and children shuffled slowly into the hall, in Moscow's House of Trade Unions on Red Square. They entered 16 abreast and then formed into column of twos to climb the stairs to the hall where the body lies. The slow procession will continue all night, and perhaps Saturday and the day after that and even the day after that.

A funeral service befitting one of the most powerful men in history was in preparation even as Stalin's coffin was borne into the hall to lie in state.

The Soviet "man of steel," who ruled over one-sixth of the earth's surface and dominated one-third of its peoples, died Thursday night in the Kremlin four days after being stricken. Death came at 9:50 p.m. and was announced to the Russian people eight hours later.

Stalin lay paralyzed and in deep coma at the end. There was no hint as to who would succeed this man who led the Soviet Union's 200,000,000 people for 29 years and called the plays for Communists the world over. But a joint statement from the Communist party and the government

The death of Joseph Stalin was announced by Moscow radio at 4:07 a.m. today, Russian time. (5:07 p.m. Thursday, PST.)

The Soviet dictator actually died, however, at 9:50 p.m., Moscow time (10:50 a.m. PST). Announcement of his death was held up more than six hours.

called for continuation of such policies as strengthening the armed forces, increased vigilance at home and tighter bonds with Communists abroad.

At this stage there is no prospect of any change in the policies Stalin pursued.

This afternoon a hearse left the Kremlin. While thousands assembled on Red Square to see it, the hearse moved slowly to the Hall of Columns bearing Stalin's coffin.

Immense heaps of flowers and wreaths surrounded it. Russians began filing past to gaze for the last time at the man who led them to victory over Nazi Germany. Thousands were in line when the doors opened.

The processions for those wishing to say "svdaniya" goodbye will continue day and night until the funeral. No date has been announced for the final services nor has there been any word where Stalin is to be buried.

GLASS COLUMN

The Hall of Columns is only a few hundred yards from the great Mausoleum in Red Square where V. I. Lenin, Stalin's predecessor and the father of Russian communism, lies embalmed in a glass coffin.

The hall is in the House of Trade Unions on Red Square. Built in the empire style under the czars in 1874, it features 28 white Corinthian columns. It can accommodate at least 2,000 persons and often has been used for state functions, conferences and concerts.

Moscow was cold, windy and unpleasant today, but life went on as usual.

Moscow's embassies and legations lowered their flags to half-staff.

The death of the man who sparked the development of Russia from a near-feudal farmland to a great industrial power exceeded only by the United States was first announced by Moscow radio at 4:07 a.m. today local time (5:07 p.m. Thursday, PST) in a broadcast beamed to Soviet provincial newspapers.

Two hours later, Moscow radio's star announcer, Luri Levitan, told the saddened country that his chief had died. Levitan twice read both the official announcement and the final bulletin from the 10 Kremlin doctors who had been in constant attendance on Stalin since his stroke Sunday.

Second Victoria Intercity Soccer Team Seen Possible

By BILL WALKER

Times Sports Editor

Victoria may have a second intercity soccer team if present plans materialize.

Though stating emphatically that such a possibility is "only in the infant stage, nothing more," local soccer official Hank Casilio today admitted that he is toying with the idea of applying for a Coast Soccer League franchise.

"My personal opinion is that soccer isn't developing fast enough in the city," Casilio said. "There is not sufficient incentive for the younger players with only one intercity team, and I feel that two teams could be supported."

Enlarging on the subject, Casilio expressed the view that if Victoria did have two intercity clubs, games could be played here every Saturday during the season.

"The same number of fans will turn out every Saturday," he opined.

At present Victoria United is the city entry in the Coast League, playing at home an average of twice a month when weather conditions permit.

KULAI MENTIONED

Mentioned as a possible coach for a second Victoria team is George Kulai, who for the past two years has coached the Island all-star teams and also works with Casilio and others in the promotion of the city's mammoth soccer school.

Kulai expressed sentiments similar to Casilio's on the advantages of a second team to the younger players.

However, he, too, admitted that "nothing concrete" in the way of securing a sponsor, players, or even feeling out league officials had been done.

However, it is believed that the matter is being given serious consideration. Casilio admitting that the biggest problem facing any proposed entry would be the original outlay. On that phase, Casilio said he had two sponsors in mind, but they had not been approached.

TIMES TO LIST TV PROGRAMS

Starting Saturday, the Times will run the full week's schedule of television listings for station KNTV-TV as well as for KING-TV.

The radio column, "In Tune With The Times," will be dropped on Saturdays to make room for the new television listings.

Can He Assume Stalin's Mantle?

Expert Says No Man Will Fill Shoes Of Dynamic Cobbler's Son From Georgia

(This special dispatch, exclusive to the Times, is by Edward Crankshaw, ranking authority on Russia today. Mr. Crankshaw was during the war with the British military mission in Moscow and is the author of several books on the Soviet, including the recent best-selling "Russia by Daylight.")

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

LONDON (By Cable)—The death of Stalin comes at a moment when the Soviet Union is showing greater signs of instability than at any time of peace since 1938.

Less than six months ago the summoning of the long-delayed Communist Party Congress and government reorganization in connection with it, suggested at last that the Kremlin had surmounted its postwar difficulties and was finding itself on an even keel. The reorganized Communist party gave the country a government machine far better suited to survive the catastrophe of Stalin's death than the ramshackle system of committees it replaced. Malenkov as supreme party boss under Stalin appeared to have strengthened his position immeasurably and to be heading straight for succession.

Then with a sudden outbreak of purges beginning this year the whole situation underwent a change and was fluid once again.

One underlying reason behind the purges was almost a certainly renewed struggle between Malenkov, party manager, and Beria, the head of the police. There is only one thing these two men would seriously quarrel about—the issue of personal power.

Stalin Only Popular Hero

What do Russians feel about Stalin and his successor? Although in the hearts of millions now in Russia Stalin's death will kindle a sudden flame of fierce joy, and millions more will mourn the man who drove them to the limit and taught them to realize their own strength, such is Russian nature that he came to be regarded even by some of those who had suffered most at his hands as the stern sentinel and protector standing between the ordinary man and the bullying of police and bureaucrats. Apart from him there are no popular heroes in the Soviet Union.

This extraordinary man would stand no light beside his own. Molotov he regarded as the faithful servant; Malenkov as the quintessential party boss; Beria as the man behind prisons and labor camps, deportation and midnight arrests.

Legend Not Made in a Day

It was not until long after he had achieved supreme power that even Stalin permitted himself to assume the outward trappings of power.

For example he was quite content to allow first Rykov then Molotov to act as prime minister until the very eve of war.

The Stalin legend was not made in a day and will not be inherited in a day. It was clear from the reorganization of the party last October and the transformation of small Politburo and Orgburo into the much larger and looser Presidium that Stalin was trying to set up a machine which would allow effective government by committee.

But in fact no dramatic changes are likely. The government machine is very strong; the entrenched bureaucracy reaches everywhere; the police have limitless power. The Russian people know this. They also know what came after the great predecessors of Stalin: Ivan the Terrible and Peter the Great. When a strong hand was loosened the country fell prey to every kind of weakness and reaction.

My own feeling is that although Stalin had borne so harshly and cruelly upon the lives of so many millions, a widespread feeling in Russia will be regret at the loss of an evil they know and fear, of an evil they have not yet met. All most Russians will allow themselves is a hope that the transition from the leadership of one supreme and quasi-divine dictator to a dictatorship of lesser mortals will be managed without the dreadful calamities which marked Stalin's own rise to power.

Stalin's Right-Hand Man New Premier

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio announced tonight that Georgi Malenkov has been designated premier of Soviet Russia, succeeding Joseph Stalin.

L. Beria, V. M. Molotov, N. Bulganin and Lazar Kaganovich — Stalin's brother-in-law — appointed vice-premiers.

Moscow radio also announced that Marshal Klementi Voroshilov has been appointed chairman of the Soviet praesidium in place of Nikolai Shvernik.

Other appointments announced:

Foreign Affairs—Molotov.

United Nations permanent representative—Andrei Vishinsky.

War Minister—Bulganin.

Lavrenti Beria, 54, chief of the secret police for many years, also returns to his old job as head of the ministries of securities and internal affairs, which will be merged.

By W. A. RYSER

LONDON (UP)—Russia warned her enemies today not to try to take advantage of the crisis caused by Joseph Stalin's death.

A few hours after Stalin died Radio Moscow boomed this warning around the world: "The Soviet people know that the defense capacity and the might of the Soviet state are growing and strengthening, that the party is in every way strengthening the Soviet army, navy and intelligence organs with the view to constantly raising our preparedness for a decisive rebuff to any aggressor."

Observers here agreed that Stalin's death had plunged Russia into her worst crisis since the German armies of the Second World War knocked at the gates of Moscow. The fight for Stalin's mantle may already be under way, but it will not be resolved for some time.

Many of the persons who may have a voice in choosing Stalin's successor are not even in Moscow now. Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, sails from New York today. Jacques Duclos, acting leader of the French Communist party, is booking passage from Paris. Leaders of the Soviet satellites in Europe are reported to be hurrying to Moscow to attend the Stalin funeral and then stay on to participate in the struggle for power.

Broadcast Appeal for Loyalty

As near as can be determined the situation in Moscow is as follows:

1. The men in the Kremlin are concerned about the reaction of the Russian people and have broadcast to them an appeal to stand by the Communist party — "In these sorrowful days all the people of our country are rallying even closer in the great fraternal family of the Communist party."

2. Anybody who thinks a revolution will break out immediately probably is engaging in wishful thinking. All indications are that the secret police of Lavrenti Beria have the nation firmly under control. All broadcasts and press reaction from European capitals indicate the satellite states are standing firm.

Appointment Expected in Spring

4. It may be a month or two before a formal successor to Stalin as premier of the USSR is named. The Supreme Soviet usually assembles between March and May, and that would be a logical time to make the announcement.

5. It is unlikely that there will be any immediate shift in Russian foreign policy. Even if his successor wanted to make some changes, it would take a long time to reorient the nation's policy. A change in attitude toward the Korean War, for instance, would have to be carefully negotiated with the Chinese Communists.

Stalin held three titles—one in the Soviet government and two in the Communist Party. Molotov may fall heir to the title of premier. However, the party titles as head of the presidium of the central committee and general secretary of the central committee of the party probably will go to Malenkov.

Pravda—official newspaper of the Communist Party—gave Malenkov, party secretary, a pat on the back by mentioning him in an editorial in the same breath with Stalin and Lenin. This indication that Malenkov might become the new party chief would make the 51-year-old party secretary the power behind the throne—as was Stalin for many years until he became premier in May, 1941.

World's Great Send Condolences

BY UNITED PRESS

The death of Joseph Stalin brought the following comment from well-known men throughout the world:

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER—"The government of the United States tenders its official condolences to the government of the USSR on the death of Generalissimo Joseph Stalin, prime minister of the Soviet Union."

TRYGVE LIE, United Nations Secretary-General—"I have the honor to extend my personal condolences on the death of Generalissimo Joseph V. Stalin. On those occasions on which I had the honor of meeting Mr. Stalin, I have been deeply impressed by the qualities which made him one of the outstanding statesmen of our times."

LESTER B. PEARSON, President of the U.N.—"As president of the General Assembly, I express to you, to the government and peoples of the Soviet Union deep sympathy at the death of Premier Stalin. With his passing the U.N. has lost one of its founders and the Soviet peoples the man who was their indomitable leader in the course of the struggle against Nazi aggression."

SYNGMAN RHEE, South Korean President—"I express regret over the passing of the great leader of Russia. What we are fighting is not between human and human but between ideas and ideas. If the Communists prove they have no desire for aggression against their neighbor nations, we can even make Russia our good friend."

H. V. EVATT, leader of the opposition party in the Australian parliament—"The cold war strained relations with Russia inevitably obscured the fact that Stalin stood before the world as the embodiment of Russia's indomitable spirit to win in the struggle against Hitlerism."

About th' only speaker Tilly's sure t' be in th' House t' hear is th' Minister o' Education.

Ain't no truth in th' story th' Cayuga was seen steamin' down Esquimalt Road. It never got off Admiral's Road.

If they drew straws fer Stalin's job, who got it—th' winner or th' loser?

FINAL BULLETINS

Playoff Tonight for Curling Title

SUDBURY (CP)—Saskatchewan forced a playoff between Quebec and Manitoba for the Canadian curling championship by defeating the Montreal rink, 9-5, today. The playoff was scheduled tonight.

Carelessness $10,000 Fire Cause

Carelessness in disposal of the contents of an ashtray is blamed for a $10,000 fire last Saturday afternoon at 1322 Douglas.

This was the finding of a fire marshal's representative who investigated. The blaze started in the rear of the Tailor Shop, 1322 Douglas, and swept up through the lounge of the Tillikum Club.

Vancouver Jet Pilot Missing

MONTREAL (BUP)—Planes are criss-crossing over northern Quebec woods in search of a missing pilot who bailed out of his Sabre jet Thursday.

The air force says that Flying Officer Robin Francis Helliger of Vancouver was on a lone training flight from his home base at Bagotville, Quebec, when a snowstorm closed in and he was unable to land.

B.C. Mother Held in Knife Slaying

GOLDEN, B.C. (CP)—A mother will be charged with the butcher-knife slaying of her two-year-old daughter, RCMP reported today.

Police said Mrs. Sybil Jones of Moberly, six miles north of here, was brought here Thursday after she had told a neighbor that her daughter, Janette Marguerite, had been killed with a butcher knife.

Mrs. Jones is being held here pending completion of the police investigation. After that, police said, the charge of murder will be laid and she will be taken to Oakalla Prison Farm near Vancouver for mental examination.

Workers Find Stolen Bonds

VANCOUVER (CP)—A demolition crew working a house in downtown Vancouver found a cache of $3,500 worth of bonds that were stolen from a Nanaimo, B.C., post office in August, 1951.

A total of $35,000 was taken from the Nanaimo post office in what is described as the nearest safe cracking job in British Columbia history.

The safe was blown Aug. 28 by a powerful blast.

Two RCMP detectives now are attempting to trace former residents of the house. RCMP in Montreal recently charged one man with receiving part of the loot but he was acquitted in court.

Malenkov as supreme party boss under Stalin appeared to have strengthened his position immeasurably and to be heading straight for succession.

Then with a sudden outbreak of purges beginning this year the whole situation underwent a change and was fluid once again.

One underlying reason behind the purges was almost a certainly renewed struggle between Malenkov, party manager, and Beria, the head of the police. There is only one thing these two men would seriously quarrel about—the issue of personal power.

Moscow's embassies and legations lowered their flags to half-staff.

The death of the man who sparked the development of Russia from a near-feudal farmland to a great industrial power exceeded only by the United States was first announced by Moscow radio at 4:07 a.m. today local time (5:07 p.m. Thursday, PST) in a broadcast beamed to Soviet provincial newspapers.

This extraordinary man would stand no light beside his own—Molotov—he regarded as the faithful servant; Malenkov as the quintessential party boss; Beria as the man behind prisons and labor camps, deportation and midnight arrests.

It was not until long after he had achieved supreme power that even Stalin permitted himself to assume the outward trappings of power.

For example he was quite content to allow first Rykov then Molotov to act as prime minister until the very eve of war.

The Stalin legend was not made in a day and will not be inherited in a day. It was clear from the reorganization of the party last October and the transformation of small Politburo and Orgburo into the much larger and looser Presidium that Stalin was trying to set up a machine which would allow effective government by committee.

Malenkov Premier; 4 Aides Appointed

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio announced tonight that Georgi Malenkov has been designated premier of Soviet Russia, succeeding Joseph Stalin.

L. Beria, V. M. Molotov, N. Bulganin and Lazar Kaganovich—Stalin's brother-in-law—appointed vice-premiers.

Moscow radio also announced that Marshal Klement Voroshilov has been appointed chairman of the Soviet praesidium in place of Nikolai Shvernik.

Other appointments announced:
Foreign Affairs—Molotov.
United Nations permanent representative—Andrei Vishinsky.

War Minister—Bulganin.
Lavrenti Beria, 54, chief of the secret police for many years, also returns to his old job as head of the ministries of securities and internal affairs, which will be merged.

At 20 Malenkov was called to Moscow to study at the higher technical school set up for promising party men. There he headed the party unit. Finally, Stalin took note of his ability.

In 1939, when he was only 37, he became a member of the central committee and one of its secretaries, along with Stalin.

As minister of interior, Beria undoubtedly will remain in charge of the dread secret police and the atomic energy program as he was under Stalin.

Molotov, 63, who was foreign minister for years, now returns to that post.

There was no immediate explanation of the trip.

Some observers speculated he would take over Russia's U.N. delegation during former Soviet foreign minister Andrei Vishinsky's absence in Moscow.
